The music was written by Sherman Kelly, produced by Jack Robinson, originally recorded in 1970 by the band of Kelly Boffalongo, and then successfully launched as a single by King Harvest in 1972, achieving no The 13 ON Billboard Hot 100. In 2000, a cover by Band Band Toploader has become a worldwide success and achieved multi-platinum status in the UK. History Sherman Kelly wrote the music in 1969. [1] By recovering from a vicious attack by a gang, he "imagined an alternative reality, the dream of a peaceful and cheerful celebration of life." [2] Kelly wrote: On a trip to St. Croix in 1969, I was the first vitima of a Gang of St. Croix Vicious that ended up murdered 8 American tourists. In that time, I suffered multiple fractures and facial wounds and I was dead. While I was recovering, I wrote "Dancin in the moonlight" in which I imagined an alternative reality, the dream of a peaceful and cheerful celebration of life. Music has become a great success and has been registered by many musicians around the world. "Dancin in the moonlight" continues to be popular until today. [3] He registered singing lead with his band Boffalongo, who was active from 1968 to 1971, being the only unique of the band. The music also was recorded by high broom and launched in 1970 in the island records (Catalog No. WIP 6088; Vinyl 7 "). [4] [5] He could not reach the graph of Singles of the UK. The Sherman Kelly Wells Brother Kelly introduced the music for the band based in Paris, King Harvest in which he was a drummer, and former member Boffalongo Dave "Doc" Robinson was vocalist, bassist and keyboardist. King Harvest engraved and released "dancing in the moonlight" as single with "Lady, come home" on side B in 1972. Steve Cutler, a New York City Jazz Drummer (Panet on the Post Base in the photo of the cover), played battery in the tracks and traveled the UK France with the band. The group broke out after six months and the singles stood out for a year until he was purchased and launched around the world by records of perception. In Canada, the music reached the number 5 in the weekly and number 71 in the end of the year to 1973.
