open/close all folders Original PAW Patrol members General Tropes Aerith and Bob: We have pups with common names (Chase, Skye, Marshall, Ella), pups with slightly rare names (Rocky, Tuck, Rex), and then there's names like Zuma, Rubble, Everest, and Tracker. Art Evolution: The movie improves their character designs, not only giving them more detailed fur, but also changing the design of their back legs to look more like real-life dogs. Awesome Backpack: How all the pups get flight pack add-ons. Badass Adorable: They're a Rescue team comprised of vehicle-driving, gadget-wielding Precious Puppies. How can they not be? Special mention goes to super spy police dog Chase and Pup-Fu practicing firefighter Marshall. Borrowed Catchphrases: In "Pups Save a Superpup", Zuma borrows Rubble's "On the double" line when called upon to drive the absent pup's bulldozer. In "Pups Leave Marshall." Home Alone", Marshall uses Ryder and Chase's lines when required to handle an emergency by himself. In "Moto Pups: Pups Save a Sneezy Chase", Sky uses the absent Chase's "Ready for action, Ryder, sir!" Catchphrase: All members have at least one. As a group, the pups have "Ryder needs us!" (or sometimes, "Ryder's calling!") when they're summoned for a mission. Color-Coded Characters: Generally associated with their role, such as Chase (police dog) having blue and red uniforms, respectively, but still: Marshall: Red Rubble: Yellow Chase: Royal blue Rocky: Lime green Zuma: Orange Skye: Pink Everest: Teal Tracker: Khaki green Robo-Dog: White Tuck and Ella: Sky blue and Gray Rex: Chartreuse and Cerulean Wild: Amber Liberty: Coral Rory: White and Sky Blue Shade: Purple Leo: Pale yellow Al: Gray Cute Little Fangs: Yes, they are to be expected from dogs, but they're small and not at all scary. Free-Range Children: In the early episodes, the pups were often seen by themselves, playing or walking through town. Later seasons phased this out, so they are rarely seen without Ryder or some other human character with them. Furry Reminder: They still have many of the usual canine mannerisms (eating out of doggie bowls, loving belly rubs and petting, enjoying doggy treats, showing affection by tackling and licking, wagging tails when pleased or excited, etc.) while they're managing PAW Patrol vehicles and equipment. Interspecies Friendship: The pups and Ryder are as close as friends as they are as colleagues. Kid Hero: Applies to all of the pups, who are all still young. Meaningful Name: All of the characters possess names befitting their occupations (except for Tuck and Ella). Mecha Expansion Pack: In Ultimate Rescue episodes, each pup's vehicle gains a number of attachments that make it big enough for the whole team to ride in, and also includes detachable extra vehicles for the other pups to operate. No One Gets Left Behind: The PAW Patrol are willing to save their leader (and any other teammate, for that matter) no matter the cost. Don't even try to take Ryder away from them; they will do everything in their power to get him back. Parental Abandonment: The parents of the pups are absent from the series. It's especially noticeable in Everest, Tracker, Tuck, and Ella, who are perceived to be strays before meeting the PAW Patrol. It's also heavily implied in the movie that Chase was a victim of this. Save the Villain: The PAW Patrol are dedicated to saving all those in need, even the likes of Mayor Humdinger, Sweetie and Sid the pirate. Talking Animal: The pups are a notable case in that they can talk, but other non-canine animals can't. (the exceptions are Mr. Nibbles/The Copycat, who gains the ability to talk when charged up by the meteor, and Wildcat, whose reasons for being able speak have yet to be revealed.) Transforming Mecha: The pups' respective houses transform into their mission vehicles. In season two, Chase, Marshall, and Zuma's houses transform into their mission vehicles. In season two, Chase, Marshall, and Zuma's houses transform into their mission vehicles. Save a Stinky Flower," Rocky's recycling truck also transforms into a tugboat. Undying Loyalty: The pups are loyal to Ryder especially in some scenarios like one of their members have gone missing or get captured by the enemy. Vague Age: It's not clear how old they are. The wiki claims they're in between 4-8 (specifically, Tracker is 4, Rubble and Zuma are 5, Marshall and Rocky are 6, Chase and Skye are 7 and Everest is 8). Tuck and Ella do not have confirmed ages. The French dub specifically refers to them as puppies, his friends". Ryder "PAW Patrol is on a roll!"Voiced in North American English by: Owen Mason (Season 1-mid Season 2), Elijha Hammill (mid Season 2-late Season 3), Jaxon Mercey (late Season 7), Beckett Hipkiss (late Season 8), Joseph Mason (Season 1-mid Season 1), Joseph Mason (Season 1-mid Season 2-Season 6), Lewis Crabb-LaHei (Seasons 7-present)Ryder is a human child who is called upon by various residents around Adventure Bay, giving the PAW Patrol. Absurd Phobia: Brussels sprouts, to the point of having nightmares about them. We couldn't make this up if we tried. Action Fashionista: He has specific outfits for Sea Patrol, Mission PAW, Air Patrol, and every type of Ultimate Rescue, as well as a scuba suit, two different Halloween outfits, pajamas, and a basketball uniform. We're guessing the lesson here is if you're gonna save Adventure Bay, you might as well do it in style. Adorably-Precocious Child: He has his moments that show his age, such as playing video games on his Pup-Pad when a call comes in. Ryder (to a sea slug): Whenever you're in trouble, just (mimics giggling) for help! Badass in Distress: Occasionally needs saving by the pups for one reason or another, notably in Mighty Pups where he's actively kidnapped. Catchphrase: "Alright! PAW Patrol is on a roll!", "No job is too bignote or contextually-appropriate substitute for help!" Curtains Match the Windows: Has brown eyes and hair. Distressed Dude: In "Pups Save Ryder", he got stranded on a cliff and needed the PAW Patrol to come save him. And in Mighty Pups, he's actively kidnapped and held for some time (though he does ultimately manage to escape and call the pups). Does Not Like Spam: Despises Brussels sprouts (though it's slightly justified, considering his age). Dub Name Change: Kent in the Japanese dub, due to legal issues involving the Kamen Rider seriesnote The creators of the latter apparently had trademarked the name "Rider", thus forcing Ryder to be renamed Kent. The Leader: Ryder serves as the organizer of the team, receiving the distress calls and arranging missions for the pups when needed. Improbable Age: Is 10 years old, yet runs what is essentially a regional version of International Rescue. Jet Pack: Gains one in "Air Pups" alongside a birdman suit. Kid Hero: Only ten years old, but is a formidable rescue crew leader. Not so Above It All: Mature for the most part, but there are some pretty cute moments where he mimics an animal noise during his catchphrase, proving that he's still a fun-loving kid underneath it all. Out of Focus: He often gets ignored in favor of the pups, and is often excluded from advertising/The Merch. Punny Name: In the Japanese dub, Ryder's name (Kent), while being read with Japanese phonetics as "Kento/大人", which is also a valid name there, can be read as "dog person", a name quite fitting for some who deals with dogs. Red Is Heroic: Part of his vest is red, and he's a Kid Hero. Ship Tease: He's implied to have a crush on Katie. Spiky Hair: Has this, and a few episodes imply it's natural. Stout Strength: While he looks small, he can lift every pup, a treasure chest, and a goat. Team Dad: A surprisingly young example. He's usually the one taking care of/looking out for the pups. Token Human: A human among eight dogs. Transforming Vehicle: Though not to the same level as the pups' homes, his ATV can take on other modes for all-terrain travel, like its jetski or snowmobile modes. Wise Beyond Their Years: Is the leader of the rescue team of an entire town despite being only 10 years old, can remain completely professional while on a job, and the town deeply respects him and his team for it. Vocal Evolution: In earlier episodes, His voice was sounding more robotic and much deeper, it wasn't until the rest of the first and later seasons that his voice becomes more youthful, and less-robot now. Youthful Freckles: Sports these in the movie. Marshall "I'm fired up!" Voiced in North American English by: Gage Munroe (Season 6), Kingsley Marshall (late Season 6), Kingsley present) Foreign language dubbers: Leslie Lipkins (French), Pabla Hermann (Chilean Spanish), Moon Nam-sook (Korean), Sofia Kapsambeli (Greek), Makoto Koichi (Japanese), Csongor Szalay (Hungarian), Monica Ward (Italian), Anna Apostolakis-Gluzińska (Polish), Heljä Heikkinen (Finnish), Megi Mysliu (Albanian) Marshall is a Dalmatian pup that serves as the firefighter and medic dog of the group. Goodhearted and ready to go, Marshall is often tripped up by his klutziness. Nevertheless, he manages to be an effective rescuer-even if he might end up falling down his fire engine's ladder. As expected, his home, Vehicle No. 3, is a fire truck. In Season 2 and onwards, it also takes the form of a rescue ambulance. Bad Liar: He's not very good at keeping secrets. When Rocky explained that he was keeping Chase busy while the others prepared his surprise party, everyone reacted in disbelief. Sure enough, when the scene changes to him and Chase, he's visibly struggling to keep up the ruse. Bunny-Ears Lawyer: Sure, he trips and falls a lot and makes countless puns, some of which are even cringeworthy, but he's very good at his job and rarely makes a mistake on missions. Butt-Monkey: At the very least, he's prone to slapstick. And getting his head stuck in stuff. Catchphrase: "I'm fired up!" and "Ready for a ruff, ruff rescue!" Dub Name Change: Marcus, in the French dub. Endearingly Dorky: His clumsiness is viewed as funny and endearing by the rest of the cast, which is helped by his penchant for bad puns and earnest efforts to help people. Firehouse Dalmatian: Obviously, he's the firefighter of the team. His doghouse turns into a fire truck and his pup pack contains water-shooting cannons. Later in the series, he's promoted to medic pup, while still keeping his role as the fire pup. Friend to All Living Things: Birds really like the guy. Heterosexual Life-Partners: With Chase. I Am Not Weasel: In "Pups Save a Basketball Game", he corrects Mayor Humdinger by reminding him that he is a Dalmatian when the latter calls him a beagle. In a Single Bound: In "Mighty Pups, Charged Up: Pups vs. the Copycat", after he and Chase power each other up, Marshall gains the ability to jump so high it looks like he's flying. Interspecies Friendship: With Fuzzy, a goose chick Marshall bonded with and later helped reunite with his flock, while also facing his fear of heights. Jet Pack: In "Air Pups," he receives a version that also has water-propelled VTOL jets, akin to a flyboard. The Klutz: Marshall's defining trait. Exploited in "Sea Patrol: Pups Save Their Pirated Sea Patroller". Marshall is able to use his clumsiness to distract his captor, Sid, by spraying him in the face and causing him to chase after him, providing an opening for Robo-Dog to re-take the bridge of the Sea Patroller. Marshall: Sometimes it's good to be clumsy! Making a Splash: His water cannons, primarily used for firefighting, can also be used to spray other liquids. In "Mission PAW: Quest for the Crown", Marshall is given a "Hydro Launcher", which fires a single jet of water powerful enough to cut through a wooden door. Meaningful Name: The firefighter pup, named after a firefighter marshal. The Medic: Since Season 2, this has been Marshall's other role in the series, complete with an X-ray monitor in place of the usual water cannons. Next Tier Power-Up: He and Chase power each other up to face a formidable foe, The Copycat, in "Mighty Pups, Charged Up: Pups vs. The Copycat". Marshall specifically gains the ability to jump high enough to look like he's flying. Nice Guy: He's always friendly and has an earnest desire to help. Performance Anxiety: He sometimes suffers from this; in "Pups Save a Show," he had to fill in for Chase (who came down with a sore throat) in the pups' play, and was so nervous he could barely bring himself to get on stage, and even flubbed his first few lines. He experiences this again in "Pups Save the Talent Show," where he is terrified by the idea of singing on stage without Rubble. Playing with Fire: In the Mighty Pups special, he gains the ability to channel heat through his paws. Pungeon Master: Sometimes makes these when he ends up crashing into the other pups. Sometimes they're well-received, other times, not so much. Red Oni, Blue Oni: Marshall is an enthusiastic extrovert (red), contrasting with Chase's more intellectual and calm (blue) personality. Running Gag: Marshall getting his head stuck in something excitedly rushing to the elevator, crashing into it/the other pups, and tripping/falling are the series' main running gags. Also, expect him to have something fall onto his face and/or fall down the rungs of his ladder if he's using it to (try and) rescue someone. Sleepwalking: The "ghost" of "Pups Save a Ghost" turns out to be Marshall walking around in his sleep. Ironically, amusingly, and befitting to the trope, he manages a skateboard and a surfboard far better in his sleep than he does while awake. Speaks Fluent Animal: "Pups Save a Cow" reveals that Marshall learned to speak cow from Cap'n Turbot, allowing him to calm down a frightened Betting. In "Pups Save Unice Otis from His Cabin", he is able to communicate with a squirrel, and later, some beavers, enlisting their help to chew a hole in the cabin. Sweet Tooth: When a batch of jam the Patrol intended to enter in a competition gets a whole bag of sugar dumped into it, Marshall remarks that he likes it, despite some of his teammates gagging from the sugary taste in the background. Why Did It Have to Be Snakes?: Marshall has a fear of heights-or more specifically, a fear of being dangled in the open air (as he manages to handle climbing his ladder just fine). He seems to have overcome it in "Air Pups," given that he's perfectly fine with his water-propulsion pack. Vocal Evolution: In the first season, Marshall's voice was high-pitched and scratchy-like, until in later seasons his voice is much lower. Youthful Freckles on his cheeks. Rubble "Rubble on the double!"Voiced in North American English by: Devan Cohen (Seasons 6-mid Season 8), Lucien Duncan-Reid (mid Season 8-present)Voiced in European English by: Luca Townsend (Seasons 1-2), Fin Harvey (Seasons 3-5), Piers Gardener (Seasons 6-present) Rubble is an English Bulldog pup that serves as the construction dog of the group. He is an accomplished digger with his paws, which led to him becoming a member of PAW Patrol. Like the others, he's usually very enthusiastic about missions, as well as any chance to put his bulldozer to use. As expected, his home, Vehicle No. 06, is a bulldozer with an auger excavator in the back. Sometimes, the latter is replaced with a crane. Adaptational Comic Relief: In the movie, he gets more comedic and goofy moments than even Marshall does. The Baby of the Bunch: "Pups Get A Rubble" reveals that he's the youngest member of the original six pups, even being smaller in the flashbacks than he is in the present. As such, he can be a little more childish than the other pups, like when he plays "Super Rubble," even while on a mission. Baths Are Fun: Unlike Rocky, Rubble loves taking bubble baths. The Big Guy: Among the pups, naturally due to being a construction pup. Catchphrase: "Rubble on the double!" and "Let's dig it!" Cute Little Fangs: Rubble's are rather prominent. Cuteness Proximity: Kittens seem to have this effect on him, as seen in "Pups & the Kitty-tastrophe" and "Pups Leave Marshall Home Alone." Curtains Match the Windows: Has amber eyes the same color as his fur. Didn't Think This Through: In his attempts to act as a "Super Pup", Rubble receives a new vehicle in this style, the "Mini-Miner". Dub Name Change: Ruben, in the French dub. Kpenium (Krepysh, meaning burly) in the Russian dub. Elvis Impersonator: His Halloween costume in the Ghost Ship episode, complete with him repeating the phrase "Blue Suede". Fanboy: While all the pups are fans of the show, Rubble especially loves Apollo the Super Dog. He even dresses like titular hero during two missions. Hoverboard: In "Air Pups," he receives a duct fan-powered version, allowing him to take to the skies. His prior love of skateboarding and snowboarding means he takes to it very quickly. Green-Eyed Monster: In one episode he got jealous over Skye's apparent crush on Francois. Growling Gut: A recurring gag with Rubble involves his tummy loudly announcing it needs food. Identical Stranger: In the episode with the pirate treasure, the mysterious Captain Blackfur turns out to have been an exact lookalike of Rubble, only with a goatee. And this was foreshadowed when Blackfur turns out to have been an exact lookalike of Rubble, only with a goatee. And this was foreshadowed when Blackfur turns out to have been an exact lookalike of Rubble, only with a goatee. name is related to fragments of stone and rock, which are used for construction, and he's the construction pup. Origins Episode: "Pups Get a Rubble" shows that Rubble was saved by the PAW Patrol after he nearly fell off a cliffside branch. Wanting to join them, Rubble proved himself by putting his digging skills to use to save Jake when he was trapped in the snow. Rolling Attack: In "Mighty Pups, Charged Up: Pups vs. the Copycat", after he and Zuma power each other up, he gains the ability to surround himself in a sphere of energy, allowing him to slam into objects like a wrecking ball. Sleep Cute: In "Pups Save an Adventure," the other pups fawn over how cute he looks when he's sleeping. Sleep Mask: He has been shown to wear one on a few occasions, usually leading him to get tripped up. Super Strength: Gains this power in Mighty Pups, which allows him to, among other things, perform a Shockwave Stomp. Tender Tears: Rubble is the pup who has been shown shedding tears, and he makes guite the sad expressions despite such instances being brief. He also tends to be the pup who shows the most disappointment when he's not yet called for a mission he wants to partake in. Tunnel King: Rubble is an accomplished digger, even without his shovel pack. As seen in his debut episode, he was able to dig into the heavy snow to rescue Jake. Vocal Evolution: His voice is much less-scratchy in later episodes. Why Did It Have to Be Snakes?: Rubble really doesn't like spiders, to the point of worrying that he might catch "spider cooties". It doesn't help that they have a tendency to drop right down on/near his nose. In "Mission PAW: Royally Spooked", he shows a fear of ghosts, to the point where he can't bear to be in the supposedly haunted castle of Barkingburg (though he faces his fear in the end to save Sweetie). His fear of bats is revealed in "Pups Party With Bats," but he overcomes it when it turns out the bats love his DJ music. Chase "Chase is on the case!" Voiced in North American English by: Tristan Samuel (Season 1), Max Calinescu (Seasons 2-4), Justin Kelly (Seasons 5-present), Iain Armitage (Movie) Voiced in European English by: Hayden Hunter (Seasons 5-present), Matthew Campbell (Movie) Chase is a German Shepherd pup that serves as the police skills and cruiser's winch. He is the second in command of the PAW Patrol. Starting in Season 2, he has also gained spy gear to aid in missions. His home, Vehicle No. 02, takes the form of a Police SUV, equipped with a retractable winch. Starting in Season 2, Chase becomes the obligatory skeptic character whenever the PAW Patrol may be dealing with a supernatural case. This can be somewhat justified by him being a police officer. Catchphrase: "(Super Spy) Chase is on the case!" and "These paws uphold the laws!" There's also "Ready for action, Ryder, sir!", which was changed to "PAW Patrol ready for action, Ryder sir!" after Season One. Cool Bike: In "Mission PAW: Quest for the Crown", Chase gains a Spy ATV. As of the trailer for the movie, his police vehicle can also deploy a motorcycle for narrower spaces. Cowardly Lion: The movie reveals that he is this. Chase despite seeming brave often struggles with his own doubts and fears during a mission and while he's normally able to power through it, being in Adventure City, the place of his Dark and Troubled Past causes him to go through a Heroic BSoD. It takes getting a pep talk from Ryder for him to get over it. Curtains Match the Windows: Has brown fur and eyes. Dark and Troubled Past: The movie reveals he was abandoned as a baby and lived on the Streets until Ryder took him in. Dub Name Change: Гонщик (Gonshchik, meaning racer) in the Russian dub. Grappling-Hook Pistol: His spy-pack contains a zipline. Heterosexual Life-Partners: With Marshall. Interspecies Friendship: With Little Hooty, an owlet who came to the PAW Patrol to get their help in saving his mother while she was trapped in a tree dangling off a cliff. Jet Pack: In "Air Pups," his flight pack is jet-propelled, but is more of a glider. Knuckle Cracking: In "Sea Patrol: Pups Save Puplantis", he did it while underwater and boasting he is a mer-pup on a mission. The Leader: Among the pups themselves. Make Me Wanna Shout: In "Mighty Pups, Charged Up: Pups vs. the Copycat", after he and Marshall power each other up, he gains the ability to bark at a supersonic frequency. Meaningful Name: His name refers to a police chase. And with his Super Speed in Mighty Pups, he's a high-speed Chase! Next Tier Power-Up: He and Marshall power each other up to face a formidable foe, The Copycat, in "Mighty Pups, Charged Up: Pups vs. The Copycat". Chase specifically gains the ability to bark at a supersonic frequency. The Nose Knows: As to be expected of a police dog, Chase has an incredible sense of smell. As noted on the main page, it was to the point of being able to distinguish jellybean colors while blindfolded. Not so Above It All: Chase tries to maintain a professional attitude while on missions. It doesn't always work out for him. Examples are seeing that Skye's alright after danger (and quickly attempting to cover it up), and laughing like the kid he is on the slide sometimes. Pink Girl, Blue Boy: He wears blue, while Skye wears pink. Police Are Useless: Naturally averted, although Chase oddly seems to be the only police official in Adventure Bay. Real Men Wear Pink: Played for Laughs when Chase was once seen wearing Skye's bathing cap, as well as admiring himself in a mirror with it. Red Oni. Blue Oni. Chase is calm and intellectual (blue), contrasting with Marshall's enthusiastic and extroverted (red) personality. Ship Tease: With Skye, with whom he has some touching moments, such as their Pup Pup Boogie game and once acting as Team Dad and Team Mom in organizing the pups. Whenever Skye seems to be in danger, Chase shows the most concern out of the rest of the pups, and is usually the most joyful when she turns out to be safe. Sick Episode: He had a cold in "Pups Save a Show". Sneeze of Doom: Chase is allergic to cat fur (which apparently includes all things feline since he sneezes when tracking tigers in one episode) and feathers, which can complicate missions where he has to help Cali (or any feline for that matter) or Chickaletta. It also causes some problems with their new teammate Wild Cat (until his Moto helmet is upgraded with a hypo-allergenic filter). Speaks Fluent Animal: Zig-zagged in "Pups Save a Hoot". While Ryder suggests that Chase can speak owl, Chase says that it's more like he knows what Little Hooty is trying to tell him. Super Speed: In the Mighty Pups special, he gains this power from the meteor. Unwanted Assistance: Invoked in "Pups Save a Herd" when Chase wants to practice for a herding competition and tries to help others by herding. His efforts trip up the Porters' shipment of cakes, scare off the seagulls Turbot was counting and cause him to fall into the Bay, and lead Rocky to roll atop a bunch of tennis balls and get very wet. With Catlike Tread: His early use of the spy gear usually resulted in him talking quite a bit while he was supposed to be stealthy. It gets especially humorous when he yells at a seagull for getting in the way when he was "trying to spy [t]here". Vocal Evolution: His voice in early seasons was low-pitched, but as time flys by, his voice is much higher. You Are in Command Now: In both "Pups Save Ryder" and the Mighty Pups special, Chase is forced to lead the team when Ryder is incapacitated. Rocky "Green means go!" He regularly is called upon to fix damaged materials, often by using various things he's collected in his truck. As long as it doesn't require him to get wet. His home, Vehicle No. 05, is a combination forklift/recycling truck, which contains the many recyclables he's collected. Butt-Monkey: At least where water is concerned. If there's something involving a lot of water around, then nine times out of ten, he's getting drenched. Catchphrase: "Green means go!", "Don't lose it, reuse it!", and "Why trash it, when you can stash it?" Ear Notch: His right ear has a small nick. Emerald Power: His signature color is green. Every Device Is a Swiss-Army Knife: Rocky's pack has the most tools out of the team's, containing a pincer, a screwdriver, a glue-applicator, and a tape dispenser among other things. It's even more notable in that the pack only has two mechanical arms that it's barely big enough to hold with the other hypothetical supplies. Gadgeteer Genius: Rocky has been shown implementing several devices out of the materials in his truck, such as a mini-catapult for launching streamers and a bellow-constructed trap set up to capture a "ghost". Green Aesop: His character serves as an emphasis on eco-friendly acts and recycling. Green Lantern Ring: In the Mighty Pups special, the meteor grants him the power to make green energy constructs, which he mostly utilizes in the form of giant tools. Hammerspace: Let's just say that truck holds more than it looks like it should. This is most notable when it was able to hold Zuma's old surfboard. His pack has similar properties (see Every Device Is a Swiss-Army Knife). Hates Baths: Justified. Because he has a fear of water, Rocky has been saved from a bath when the Paw Patrol needs him for a mission. Heterosexual Life-Partners: With Zuma. Horny Vikings: His Halloween costume in the Ghost Ship episode, complete with mustache. Irony: Despite hating water, he's best friends with Marshall and Zuma (particularly the latter), the water-oriented members of the group. When he is briefly transformed into a Mer-Pup, he absolutely loves swimming in the water. In season three, his truck gains the ability to change into a tugboat. The pup who hates water just to help fix the broken Diving Bell. Jet Pack: In "Air Pups," he receives a version that allows him to hove and repair things mid-air. Meaningful Name: His name comes from rocks, and he's the eco pup. Mr. Fixit: Rocky's general role in the series. Out of Focus: Rocky can tend to fade into the background on occasion to the point of being silent. Running Gag: He's an aquaphobic dog who often is hit with water (sometimes from Marshall's water cannons) for a gag. Sick Episode: He had a sore throat in "Parroting Pups", preventing him from voice-activating his tools. The Smart Guy: Among the pups, due to his mechanical know-how. Stealth Pun: As a mixed-breed who collects and recycles broken objects, he's as close to a "junkyard dog" as you can get without saying it. X-Ray Vision: In "Mighty Pups, Charged Up: Pups vs. the Copycat", after he and Skye power each other up, he gains this ability. Why Did It Have to Be Snakes?: Rocky immensely hates getting wet, and will avoid any contact with water if he can. The "Sea Patrol: Pups Save a Baby Octopus" special shows his dislike of water preventing him from even trying to complete his sea rescue training. But in the end, Rocky manages to put aside his fear to help save the day. Any water mission is a breeze with Zuma's hovercraft and diving equipment (with a breathing apparatus shaped like a bone, natch). Generally mellow and good-natured, Zuma does what he can, dude. His home, Vehicle No. 07, is a hovercraft. In Season 2, it also has a submarine mode. Bubble Gun: In "Mighty Pups, Charged Up: Pups vs. the Copycat", after he and Rubble power each other up, he gains the ability to create bubbles of energy to contain things (and people) in. Catchphrase: "Let's dive in!" and "Ready, set, get wet!" Cool Boat: Zuma has his hovercraft, which functions pretty well on land as it does on the water. And as of "Pups Save the Diving Bell", it can also transform into a mini-submarine. In "Mission PAW: Pups Save the Royal Throne", Zuma gains a new "Mini-Sub" vehicle, able to convert from a land-based configuration to an aquatic one. Elmuh Fudd Syndwome: Zuma talks like this in the US dub, due to Alex Thorne being unable to pronounce his R's. It's most notable when he addresses "Wyder" and "Wocky". This was eventually dropped after a voice actor change. The Generic Guy: Compared to the other pups, he has little to no distinct personality traits of his own, and is usually only called for backup. Helicopter Pack: His flight pack works on propellers rather than jets, and also allows him to fly underwater. Heterosexual Life-Partners: With Rocky. Making a Splash: In the Mighty Pups special, he gains the ability to spray water from his paws, and create giant waves. Meaningful Name: He's named after a famous beach in Malibu. Out of Focus: While the other pups get their fair share of screen time, Zuma tends to just fade into the background due to his water skills not being needed in most of the missions. Real Life Writes the Plot: This trope is why Zuma initially has Elmuh Fudd Syndwome and also why it was dropped. Alex Thorne couldn't pronounce his R's just fine so they decided to drop the trait over time. She's a Man in Japan: putting aside the fact some people mistake Zuma for a girl at first, even some actual dubs mistake Zuma to be a female. The Brazilian dub of the show gave him a female pronouns and also re-dubbed the S1 lines. Super Not-Drowning Skills: Non-video game example, as Zuma has demonstrated a decent lung capacity when he's not using his equipment (such as when he gave his oxygen mask to Wally to keep the walrus from drowning due to being trapped by a net). It's justified, given Zuma's water rescue training. This Looks Like a Job for Aquaman: Zuma only is assigned to aquatic missions for the most part, meaning he is called into action the least amount of times. Fortunately, due to the setting being Adventure Bay, he does manage to get a few good missions in. He also makes decent back up in non-water missions where all that's needed is an extra set of paws. Totally Radical: Zuma tends to refer to people as "dude". Vocal Evolution As in later seasons, Zuma still has his radical-voice, but sounds much deeper. Why Did It Have to Be Snakes?: Averted, as Zuma is the only one out of the six pups who is not shown to be afraid of anything. This is most notably seen in the Face Your Fears episode, where he seemed to just be there for moral support. Skye "Let's take to the sky!"Voiced in North American English by: Kallan Holley (Seasons 1-5), Lilly Bartlam (Seasons 6-present) Voiced in European English by: Holly ThomasSkye is a Cockapoo (Cocker Spaniel/Poodle mix) that serves as the aerial dog of the group. Quite energetic in her own right, Skye takes to the air in her helicopter, if not with her glider-pack. The PAW Patrol can be assured that she'll be their eyes in the paw Patrol. Blow You Away: In the Mighty Pups special, she gains the power of unassisted Flight and the ability to create whirlwinds. Catchphrase: "Let's take to the sky!"

and "This pup's gotta fly!" (usually accompanied by a backflip) The Chick: Among the pups, usually providing aerial support. Cool Bike: Gains a "Sky-Cycle" in "Mission PAW: Quest for the Crown", which can convert from a motorcycle to a flying hovercraft. Dub Name Change: In the French dub, her name is Stella. Fangirl: Of pilot Ace Sorensen, as seen in "Pups Save an Ace" Genki Girl: Mostly demonstrated by her adorable little giggle-barks and tendency to perform backflips. Girly Girl with a Tomboy Streak: Flies in a silver helicopter (with pink highlights). Goggles Do Something Unusual: Her aviation goggles function as telescopic lenses, which is handy for surveillance. The goggles that come with her Air Patrol flight suit are even more advanced. The Heart: She is the cutest and kindest of the team. Jet Pack: A variation in that it is a glider pack equipped with twin mini-thrusters and retractable wings. In "Air Pups," she receives an improved version with supersonic jets. In "Mission PAW: Royally Spooked", she uses a new glider pack that allows her to fly without jet propulsion. During the "Rescue Knights" subseries, her pup-pack includes a pair of metal dragon-styled wings. Meaningful Name: Her name is related to the sky. Pink Girl, Blue Boy: She wears pink while Chase wears blue. Pink Means Feminine: Her overall color motif. Power of the Storm: In "Mighty Pups, Charged Up: Pups vs. the Copycat", after she and Rocky power each other up, she gains the ability to control the weather. Ship Tease: In "Pups Save the Camping Trip", Skye regards Chase as being "very sweet" for being concerned about her, even when he denys it. They've also clicked particularly well on occasion, such as one instance where the two acted as Team Dad and Team Mom in getting the other pups going. Near the end of "Pups Save Friendship Day," Skye leans her head tenderly against Chase's chest, possibly hinting at her having deeper feelings for him. The Smurfette Principle: She is the sole female member of the group until the introduction of Everest in Season 2. Steven Ulysses Perhero: Skye is the air force member of the group. Token Flyer: Skye embodies this trope in two ways; her pup-pack functions a jetpack, a feature unique to her, and her vehicle is a helicopter whereas the other pups' vehicles are all wheeled. To show her position as the sole flying member, the symbol on her tag is a propeller and a pair of wings. Tomboy and Girly Girl: Skye is the girly girl to Everest's tomboy. Why Did It Have to Be Snakes?: Skye is very afraid of any eagles she may encounter during flight. However, she once faces this fear head-on in order to save a bunny an eagle intended to take as prey. Vocal Evolution: Due to her original voice actress Kallan Holley going through puberty, her voice became deeper each season until Holley was replaced by Lilly Bartlam at the beginning of Season 6.Later PAW Patrol members Cap'n Turbot "This cap'n can do!"Voiced in North American English by: Ron PardoVoiced in European English by: Andy TurveyForeign language dubbers: Martial Le Minoux (French), Rodrigo de la Paz (Latin American Spanish), Sa Seong-woong (Korean), Keiichi Tsuzita (Japanese), Gilad Kleter (Hebrew)Cap'n Turbot is the PAW Patrol's most frequent caller and best human friend. He is Adventure Bay's marine biologist and watchman, who provides Ryder and the pups with information on the bay's wildlife. He serves as a member of the PAW Patrol team in the Merpup-themed specials. Added Alliteratively so much that Ryder must "translate" for the pups on occasion. Black Bead Eyes: Unlike the other humans, he has dots for eyes. He gains more realistic eyes with irises in the movie. Blind Without 'Em: He's prone to wandering around aimlessly when he loses his glasses. Butt-Monkey: He is sometimes treated as a human version of Marshall. The Captain: As his name implies, he's a captain. Catchphrase: His call-outs are "Turbot tackles trout!" and "This Cap'n can do!"
Cloud Cuckoo Lander: Cap'n Turbot can be a bit out of it, at times, mostly due to being easily excitable. Cordon Bleugh Chef: He tends to make a number of seafood dishes that aren't very appealing to anyone other than himself (and sometimes Wally), such as squid jerky and fish cakes. He also baked a tray of cookies covered in jellyfish jam that given the others' reactions to it, probably isn't as tasty as jellyfish jelly. Demoted to Extra: He only makes two brief appearances in the movie. Designated Victim: He earned the title of the PAW Patrol's monitor for displaying mission objectives has a special icon of Cap'n Turbot running around in circles and yelling, "Help! Help! Help! Help! Help! Help! Help! Help! Help this is phased out after season one). Extreme Omnivore: Well, he does like eating a number of seafood products most people wouldn't eat. As well as doggie treats. Genius Ditz: Cap'n Turbot is extremely knowledgeable when it comes to make the products most people wouldn't eat. As well as doggie treats.
marine biology, but not when the topic is social skills. Got Me Doing It: Listening to Francois' French accent occasionally causes the Cap'n to pronounce "the" as "ze." Interspecies Friendship: He is good friends with Wally, his pet walrus who lives in the water around Seal Island. Last-Name Basis: He's rarely referred to by his first name. As revealed in "Pups Save the Turbots", his first name is Horatio. Nerd Glasses: He wears thick square glasses and he definitely qualifies as nerdy. Omnidisciplinary Scientist: He's a marine biologist, but in "Pups Save a Lucky Collar," the Cap'n is shown conducting owl research, so apparently he's a biologist of all sorts. Omniglot: Not only Speaks Fluent Animal, but he is also able to understand alien, and even alien rock. Promoted to Opening Titles: Cap'n Turbot gets a part in the updated intro for season three, along with Everest and the PAW Patroller. His boat (the Flounder) is present in both the original theme song and the newer one. Red Oni, Blue Oni: Cap'n Turbot is intellectual and calm (blue), contrasting with Francois' enthusiastic and extroverted (red) personality. Silly Walk: His normal walk is very clunky and awkward. Smart People Wear Glasses: He knows a lot about ocean animals, and he wears glasses. Speaks Fluent Animal: He has learned to speak quite a few different animal languages, such as narwhal, whale, and merpup. Trademark Favorite Food: Cap'n Turbot often snacks on squid jerky, and is usually the only one who wants any. Robo-Dog A Robot Dog invented by Ryder. He debuted in "Pups Save Ryder's Robot" and continues to appear as the driver of the team's vehicles (namely Vehicle No. 08, the PAW Patroller, and Vehicle No. 10, the Air Patroller). A.I. Is a Crapshoot: When his antennae was damaged, Robo-Dog ran amok through Adventure Bay. When Alex tried to fix him in "Pups In a Fix," he accidentally caused Robo-Dog ran amok through Adventure Bay. When Alex tried to fix him in "Pups In a Fix," he accidentally caused Robo-Dog to go on a "fixing" spree across town, "improving" things far beyond what was necessary, such as causing the Lookout's lift to launch itself into the air. Ascended Extra: He gets a little more focus during season three, even being given his own Pup Pack. The Driver: Of the PAW Patroller, and later, the Air Patroller, and later, the Air Patroller, and later, the Air Patroller, and the Sea Patroller, and later, the Air Patroller, and later, Pup Pack of his own, which serves a similar function to Rocky's, being packed with tools for repairing things. Flight: Due to jet boosters on his paws. Robot Buddy: As his name indicates. Robot Dog: Duh. Tunnel King: One fast digger. The Voiceless: He doesn't speak, instead just barking in a synthesized tone. Everest "Ice or snow, I'm ready to snow/mountain rescues and was introduced in the Season 2 episode, "The New Pup". She joins the PAW Patrol house, Vehicle No. 09, is located at Jake's cabin and is a snowplow with a robotic grab arm. Action Girl: Like Skye, she's a girl and she is a competent member of the PAW Patrol. Affirmative Action Girl: Added to the show to ensure that Skye is no longer the only female pup. Amazing Technicolor Wildlife: She has slightly purple fur. An Ice Person: In the Mighty Pups special, she gains the power of ice breath. Ascended Extra: For most of season 2, Everest was only called in when her skills were needed. She has gotten more focus from season 3 onwards, hanging out with the other pups when there aren't any emergencies, and having more episodes centred around her. Catchphrase: "Ice or snow, I'm ready to go!" and "Off the trail, Everest won't fail!" Commonality Connection: The PAW Patrol pups she's closest to are Rubble (who shares her love of snowboarding) and Marshall and Skye (who have similar energetic personalities). Everything's Better with Penguins. Fight Fire with Fire: In "Mighty Pups, Super Paws: Pups Stop Harold's Big Freeze", she stops Harold's freezing machine by freezing it. Genki Girl: She is a rather hyperactive and friendly pup, to say the least. Gentle Giant: She's the largest of the rescue pups, and she's also kind. Hell Is That Noise: A Lighter and Softer variant in-verse, as her tummy rumblings are mistaken for bear growls and noises of the like. Iconic Sequel Character: Introduced in Season 2.

Interspecies Friendship: Everest particularly bonded with Jake after she saved him from falling off a snowy cliff. Jet Pack: In "Pups Save a Frozen Campout", Everest gets her own Air Patrol jetpack, helping out on a rescue mission to a snow-covered island. Meaningful Name: Named after the largest, extremely cold mountain, and she handles snow/mountain rescues. Outdoorsy Gal: She loves the outdoors and everything nature-related. Promoted to Opening Titles: She briefly appears in the season three intro alongside the other pups. Sixth Ranger: Like Zuma, Everest is a specialist pup who is only called out for particular missions - in her case, those that involve snow or additional heavy lifting. Tomboy: Is particularly tomboyish. Tomboy and Girly Girl: Everest is Tomboy to Skye's Girly Girl: Everest also likes things like dress up and adorable bunnies. Trademark Favorite Food: She loves anything liver-flavored, as well as liver

But Now I Must Go: At the end of "Pups Meet the Mighty Twins", they depart from Adventure Bay in order to find Ladybird and bring her to justice. Color-Coded Characters: Tuck has a brown nose and a blue stripe in his hair in his Mighty form, and Ella has a pink nose and a red stripe in her fur in her Mighty form. Cool Car: At the end of their introductory episode, they receive their own Mighty vehicle, a car that can split into two motorcycles (one for each pup). Half-Identical Twins: They have different heights, hair, and noses to tell them apart. Pink Girl, Blue Boy: Downplayed. When in Mighty form, Tuck has blue hair and Ella has red hair. Sizeshifter: Both of them can change their sizeshifter:
at will, with Tuck having the power to shrink and Ella having the power to shrink and Ella having the power to become giant. Tuft of Head Fur: Both of them have this, although Ella's is longer. Tropes exclusive to Ella Rex "Let's dino do this!" Voiced in English (Canada/US) by: Luxton HandspikerRex is the newest member of the PAW Patrol, introduced in the Season 7 episode, "Dino Rescue: Pups and the Lost Dino Eggs." He is a Bernese Mountain Dog with lots of knowledge about dinosaurs, and he uses a wheel walker to get around. He lives in the Dino Wilds with Cap'n Turbots sister, Dr. Turbot, and his niece, Taylor Turbot. Wild Cat See 'Cat Pack' below. Liberty Voiced in English by: Marsai Martin

"I'm like a furry GPS!" Parental Abandonment: Implied; she is first seen sleeping under a newspaper in a back alley, with no parents or owners to speak of. Plucky Girl: Don't let her small size fool you. She is a very spirited and outspoken pup. Al Honk, honk! Voiced in North American English by: Nylan ParthipanA Basset Hound pup that drives a really, really big truck. He appears in the the "Big Truck Pups" subseries, starting with "Pups Stop a Flood". He also happens to share a name with a farmer named "Al". Hard Truckin': For such a small dog, he drives a really Big Badass Rig and he speaks in trucker lingo, he speaks in trucker lingo that he has to explain to his teammates. The Friendly Texan: Aside from the trucker lingo, he speaks in a mildly Southern accent, with the "folks" and "y'alls", and loves helping people who ride the road. Verbal Tic: He has a habit of referring to others as "good buddy". Cat Pack As a whole Accessory-Wearing Cartoon Animal: Rory wears a headband and legwarmers, while Shade wears a set of headphones around her neck. Animal Motifs: Each of them is inspired by the big cats they look up to; Cheetah, White Tiger, Jaguar and Lion. Cool Car: Rory, Shade and Leo each drive cars modelled after their preferred big cat. Powered Armor: What sets them apart from the PAW Patrol is that they wear special armor that gives them superhuman, er, superfeline abilities. Wild, aka Wild Cat "This cat is ready for a wild ride!"Wild as a member of the Cat Pack. Voiced in English (Canada/US) by: Tristan MammitzchThe first feline member of the PAW Patrol, also introduced in Season 7 in "Moto Pups: Pups vs the Ruff-Ruff Pack". An orange tabby cat with a mohawk, and the same non-standard cat design as Mr. Nibbles. He is an expert motorcycle stuntman. After hanging around the PAW Patrol, he founded and now leads his own team of cats. Badass Biker: A skilled motocross racer and stuntman. Catchphrase: "This cat always lands on his paws!" "Clawsome!" "Miaow-wow!" "This cat's ready for a wild ride!" Cool Bike: After his stunt bike is stolen and wrecked by Hubcap, Ryder repairs and upgrades it, incorporating a yarnball launcher, superspeed booster, and gripper claws in the tires. After forming the Cat Pack, he rides a new bike. This one is modelled after a cheetah, with a rocket booster and a feature that allows the rear wheel to split into two. Crisis Makes Perfect: He is first seen attempting to master a stunt involving three flips, and failing. But he finally pulls it off when he needs to jump his bike onto the runaway ferris wheel.
Furry Confusion: Unusually for a non-pup animal, he can speak perfect English. Inexplicably Awesome: How he is able to talk when no other cat (save for the super-powered Copycat) can is left unexplained. Ironic Fear: Despite being a cat, he has a strong fear of mice, enough that he jumps at the sight of them. He's ashamed of it until Ryder's encouragement helps him overcome it. The Leader: To his own team, the Cat Pack, since he's the one who has experience in actual rescues, being a former member of the PAW Patrol and all. Reused Character Design: He initially has a modified version of the character model used for Mr. Nibbles/The Copycat. Sudden Name Change: He is no longer addressed by anyone, including Spin Master and Nickelodeon, as "Wild Cat". Now, he is just "Wild". Super Speed: His Cat Pack suit grants him "cheetah speed". Token Heroic Orc: The first cat to not be an antagonist or a snarky bystander. Wall Crawl: His new bike has "gripper claws" in its wheels which allow it to scale even vertical surfaces. You Don't Look Like You: His model has been modified after Season 7 to match the rest of his feline teammates, notably the larger eyes, which, coupled with his now shortened name, made people think he was a completely different character. Antagonist humans Mayor Humdinger Voiced in English (UK) by: Mike CrossVoiced in French by: Philippe RoullierThe troublemaking mayor of Foggy Bottom. He often takes part in contests with Mayor Goodway. 0% Approval Rating: The citizens of Adventure Bay are angry when he is around, especially when he tries to run a city normally ran by a good mayor who has straighter morals than him. special, Humdinger has wanted superpowers of his own. He finally got them in "Mighty Pups, Save a Mega Mayor"... and turned into a childish brute, whose only goal was to get as many kitties to play with as possible. Bizarre Taste in Food: "Pups Save a Good Mayor" reveals that his favorite ice cream flavor is spinach. Bond Villain Stupidity: Plays it straight. When he managed to kidnap at least one PAW Patrol member, or steal an artifact, his plans always backfires which results in him getting in trouble, saved by the heroes and receiving punishment for his actions. Butt-Monkey: He regularly suffers humiliations and embarassment. It's at its worst in "Pups Vs. Three Super Baddies"; not only is he left out of the Villain Team-Up (even though he came up with the idea of stealing the Mighty Meteor), he ends up being forced to help clean up the mess, despite him pointing out that he had little to do with it. Catchphrase: In earlier seasons after the Kitten Catastrophe Crew was introduced, he would say "You know what to do, Catastrophe Crew" when giving his kittens orders, but this was eventually dropped. Chaste Toons: He commonly resorts to cheating to win, only to have the PAW Patrol dismantle his efforts, or for those efforts to backfire on him. Competition Freak: He regularly challenges Mayor Goodway to show on its screen. After the PAW Patroller, Ryder points out that Humdinger should have just bought a new television instead. Dastardly Whiplash: He may not be all in black, but the top hat, the mustache, and the suit all qualify. Demoted to Dragon: In the Ready, Race, Rescue special, he follows the lead of his cousin, The Cheetah. In "Mighty Pups, Charged Up: Pups Vs. the Copycat". He tries to make the Copycat his new sidekick, but the villainous feline turns this around on him, and makes Humdinger his sidekick instead. Did Not Think This Through: In "Pups Take The Cake", he entered the exact same kind of cake in the baking contest as he did last year, saying
"Once a winner, always a winner", which led to it being beaten by the pup's lookout cake. In "Pups Save a Ferris Wheel", he tried to steal a Ferris wheel from Adventure Bay and roll it back to Foggy Bottom... only to discover he had no way of controlling where the wheel went. In Pups Save Monkey-Dinger", he decided to put on the mystical monkey mask, never stopping to think what exactly the "mystical monkey power" would do to him. "Ultimate Rescue: Pups Save a Movie Monster": He stole the remote to Gigantasaur, despite not knowing how it worked. And when that failed, he tried to force the machine to Foggy Bottom by grabbing onto its tail, leading him to being dragged around by it. In Gustavo's guitar, he made a noise so bad that the Kitten Catastrophe Crew snatched the guitar away from him. Dub Name Change: In the Japanese dub, he is literally named Mayor Rival. Entertainingly Wrong: In the Mighty Pups Save a Gold Rush", he attempted to steal all of Mayor Goodway's uncle Otis's gold so he could make a statue of himself, believing he "deserved" to be a statue. "Ultimate Rescue: Pups Save a Movie Monster": Even after all the trouble he caused, he claimed "if anyone deserves popcorn, it's me!" In "Mighty Pups, Super Paws: Pups Stop Harold's Big Freeze". Even after Harold betrays him and takes the meteor fragment for himself, Humdinger immediately believes the machine Harold is putting together with his restored powers is a "mayormobile" for him. In "Mighty Pups, Charged Up: Pups Stop a Humdinger Hoard", he claims that people should do everything he says, simply because he's a mayor. Early something, and sincerely if begrudgingly thanking them afterwards. He also genuinely cares about his family, at the very least not abandoning his niece and nephew when their own plans inevitably fail. This is only cemented by the introduction of his kindhearted mother, Helga Humdinger, where we see his schemes actually be for someone else's benefit. Evil Cannot Comprehend Good: When the PAW Patrol tried to stop him from stealing the golden bones in "Ultimate Rescue: Pups and the Hidden Golden Bones", he believed they just wanted the bones for themselves, and thought the claim of the chamber collapsing was a "likely story". Evil Is Petty: In "Pups Save a Stinky Flower", he gave Mayor Goodway the "gift" of a foul-smelling flower that was due to spread its seeds all over Adventure Bay, for no reason other than to be rotten. In "Pups Save the Carnival", he was caught cheating at one of the carnival and steal all the prizes. In "Mighty Pups, Charged Up: Pups Stop A Big Bad Robot", when Harold shows off his rebuilt robot's new teleporting weapon, he suggests using it to go on a hat-snatching spree. In "Mighty Pups, Charged Up: Pups Stop A Big Bad Robot", when Harold shows off his rebuilt robot's new teleporting weapon, he suggests using it to go on a hat-snatching spree. In "Mighty Pups, Charged Up: Pups Stop A Big Bad Robot", when Harold shows off his rebuilt robot's new teleporting weapon, he suggests using the spread of the pups of the his own pet salon out of spite, and later, to use his super-clones to steal the whole building. In "Pups and Katie Stop the Barking Kittens", he has his kittens cause trouble throughout Adventure Bay for no reason but to amuse himself. Evil Laugh: He has one. Evil Uncle: Serves as this to Harold. Although Harold often proves himself to be worse than he is (and more competent, to boot). Extreme Doormat: To his cousin in "Pups Stop the Cheetah" to be worse than he is (and more competent, to boot).
enact her plans (which he had given her). Humdinger barely speaks a word of protest over any of this. Fat Bastard: He's a bit fat, and he's villainous. Fatal Flaw: Greed. Once he decides he wants something, he goes to absurd (and often unnecessary) steps to try and get it, leading to him getting into trouble along the way. Not to mention he is never satisfied with what he has, so even if he does get what he wants, he sabotages himself trying to get even a little more (such as in "Pups Save the Trick-or-treaters"). Flanderization: He started out as simply The Rival to Mayor Goodway. But over time, he has become a full-fledged Dastardly Whiplash-style villain, with his become a full-fledged Dastardly plans descending into petty and childish goals, such as stealing a pinata, or entering a pie swap just so he can steal them all. Freudian Excuse: His desire to make Adventure Bay look bad and attempts to bring glory to Foggy Bottom is no doubt due to what a dingy, downcast place his town is. Gadgeteer Genius: He created the robotic cat Meow Meow, and in "Pups Save a Trash-Dinger", a trash collecting and compacting truck. Gave Up Too Soon: In "Mighty Pups, Super Paws: When Super Kitties Attack", Humdinger takes time out of his and Harold's attempt to find another piece of the meteor to take a nap. Moments after he leaves, Harold finds the meteor piece, allowing him to enact his own plans. His Own Worst Enemy: His impatience, recklessness, and lack of forethought have dismantled his plans just as much (or even moreso) as the PAW Patrol has. Hulking Out: In "Mighty Pups, Super Paws: Pups Save the Chili Cook-Off", he has the nerve to accuse Adventure Bay of cheating when the pups' chili wins the cook-off, despite the fact that he had been cheating the entire episode (and is subsequently exposed as having used store-bought chili in his recipe). In "Pups Save an Underground Chicken", he is punished for trying to steal the golden Chickaletta statue by being forced to clean it. He loudly complains, stating that he shouldn't be doing it because he's a mayor. This in spite of the fact that he hardly ever acts like a real mayor (especially since mayors don't steal from other mayors). "Pups Save the Go-Kart Racers": Despite his own tendency to gloat and mock others when he thinks he's won, he calls Alex a mayor.
"sore winner" for coming in first place. At the end of "Pups Stop a Pie-Clone", he complains about not getting one single pie, even though the whole mess started because he wasn't satisfied with the idea of getting one single pie, even though the whole mess started because he wasn't satisfied with the idea of getting one single pie. I Reject Your Reality: In "Ultimate Rescue: Pups Save a Movie Monster". Despite admitting to himself the multiple reasons why Foggy Bottom isn't the best place to film a movie, he still tried to get Gigantasaur to go there in hopes of forcing the production to move there as well. In "Ultimate Rescue: Pups Save the Adventure Bay Games". After coming in last in every event of the games, he steals all the gold medals, claiming that this will make him a "super champion". In
"Pups Save a Sweet Mayor", he quickly convinces himself that the golden egg the Princess of Barkingburg gifted to Mayor Goodway was really meant for him instead. Ignored Epiphany: In "Pups Save Friendship Day", Mayor Goodway was really meant for him instead people more nicely, and he seems to go along with it, joining in on the Friendship Day celebrations. But, as later episodes show, this didn't take. Implausible Deniability: In "Pup-Fu", he insists he had absolutely nothing to do with the theft of Yumi's scroll. He's facing three members of the PAW Patrol with strong circumstantial evidence, and absolutely none of them believe a word he says. In "Pups Save the Cat Show", he insists that his entry into the show, Meow-Meow, is not a robot, even though Meow-Meow is currently flying above the show on its rocket paws. Insistent Terminology: In "Pups Save the Go-Kart Racers", he claims that his cheating is more like "guaranteed winning". It's All About Me: He doesn't care who his plans hurt, as long as he gets what he wants. This was best shown in "Pups Save a Duck Pond", where he drained the titular duck pond, leaving the ducks without a home, to fill his own private swimming pool. Karma Houdini Warranty: He finally receives this at the end of the movie, being imprisoned for all his crimes. Laser-Guided Karma: In "Ultimate Rescue: Pups and the Hidden Golden Bones"; after his attempts to steal the bones almost caused adventure Bay to sink into the ground, the same bones are used to prop up the area above their hidden chamber. Since trying to steal them would trigger a collapse right above him, Humdinger has no choice but to leave them there. Lethally Stupid: Never learns his lesson, and is always creating havoc in Adventure Bay rather than doing his job as an elected official. One has to wonder just how he stays in office after all the illegal acts he's committed. In "Dino Rescue: Pups and the Lost Dino Eggs," he refuses to let go of a baby T-Rex, even when its angry mother is chasing after him. Manchild: In later seasons, he is shown doing such things as trying to steal toy prizes from a carnival, or even snatching all the candy from trick-or-treating kids on Halloween. Mayor of a Ghost Town: Implied to be this in "Ultimate Rescue: Pups Save a Movie Monster", where he admits to himself that Foggy Bottom doesn't have a lot of people. Meaningful Name: The term "Humdinger" means "something extraordinary or remarkable of its kind". The Millstone: In "Pups Save the Marooned Mayors". Practically every action he takes just makes things worse for himself and Mayor Goodway. Momma's Boy: Revealed to be this in "Pups Save the Chicken Tulip", where he does everything he can to ensure his mother finds the eponymous flower first. Moral Myopia: He regularly cheats and resorts to underhanded deeds, but treats it like an outrage if he gets punished for it, and will even claim that it's "not fair". In "Pups Save Thanksgiving", he believes himself to be the nicest person he knows, in spite of all his wicked deeds. Narcissist: In "Pups Save Friendship Day", he thought a cake shaped like himself was the best gift ever, even thinking it was "too beautiful" to eat. In "Pups Save Friendship Day", he takes over Adventure Bay in Mayor Goodway's absence, forcing everyone to dress like him and eat his favorite food. He also puts up a giant poster of himself. In "Pups Save Heady Humdinger", he has his kittens carve his face into a mountainside. One-Hour Work Week: While Goodway is often seen doing her job, Humdinger has a lot of time to hang around Adventure Bay messing with Goodway is often seen doing her job, Humdinger has a lot of time to hang around Adventure Bay messing with Goodway. It probably helps that we never, ever see any other residents. Mayor Goodway even lampshades the fact that he's always snooping around Adventure Bay in "Ultimate Rescue: Pups Save the Royal Kitties". Playing Sick: In "Pups Save a Hum-Mover", he fakes a broken foot to get out of losing a race, then uses the sympathy from his "injury" to get free things from the people of Adventure Bay. The Rival: To Mayor Goodway. Arguably has become Ryder's rival as well after the introduction of the Kitten Catastrophe Crew, at least in terms of contrasting Ryder's leadership and technical expertise. Signature Headgear: In Season 1, he wore an aviator's cap. From Season 2 onward, he took to wearing the purple top hat that has since become his defining clothing item. Smart Ball: Surprisingly enough, he holds this in the Ready, Race, Rescue special; When the Cheetah scoffs at the idea of Marshall being a challenge after she beat him before, Humdinger points out that Marshall is being trained by the Whoosh, meaning that he won't be so easy to beat the next time they race. Smug Snake: To mustache-twirling levels. Sore Loser: Will usually complain or storm off when he is defeated. Stupid Evil: He repeatedly tries to cause trouble around Adventure Bay, oblivious to the PAW Patrol about not performing any more wicked deeds - even though those deeds never succeed. "Pups Stop the Cheetah" shows that he actually keeps a scrapbook chronicling his failed schemes - making it even more unbelievable that he's never learned from his mistake. Supervillain Lair: He has a secret hideout in a cave outside Foggy Bottom. Surprisingly Realistic Outcome: In "Pups Save a Hum-Mover", he cheats like usual during his race with Mayor Goodway, gaining the lead. But since he was relying on cheating to win, he never really bothered to train, and soon becomes exhausted, allowing Goodway to catch up to, and even pass him. Took a Level in Jerkass: In Season 1, he was a pompous gloater, but he at least played by the rules. From Season 2 onwards, he is often seen resorting to cheating, and even sabotaging his competition in order to win. Ultimate Job Security: How he has managed to keep his position, after all the illegal things he has done (he even has what seems to be an evil lair), is a mystery. Ungrateful Bastard: Humdinger has demonstrated that, upon being rescued by the PAW Patrol from something like falling to his death, he'll go right back to trying to screw them over. Unsportsmanlike Gloating: Loves to rub his past victories in Mayor Goodway's face. Villain Decay: Has become more incompetent as time goes by, with his own cheating ways often backfiring on him. "The Pups' Winter Wonder Show" even showed his scheme of the day failing without the PAW Patrol having to intervene (granted, he did give up, but still). Several later villains have proven their superiority over him by using, manipulating and humiliating him. Villain Has a Point: In "Pups Stop Harold's Big Freeze", he rightfully points out that Harold can't become mayor just by wearing his uncle's hat. Villains Out Shopping: In "Pups in a Jam", he takes part in the jam-making contest, with none of his usual cheating tactics. In "Pups Save a Sky Surfer", he is seen walking through Adventure Bay, minding his own business. Villains Want Mercy: He never hesitates to call the Paw Patrol himself when he needs rescued from the result of his latest scheme, no matter how much it irks him to need to do it. Villain Team-Up: In "Mighty Pups, Charged Up: Pups vs. the Copycat", he teams up with Mr. Nibbles/The Copycat as his sidekick, "Foggy Boy". Unfortunately for Humdinger, after Copycat as his sidekick, "Foggy Boy". Unfortunately for Humdinger, after Copycat show the KCC for dead on top of his collapsing tower, forcing them to be saved by the PAW Patrol. Would Hurt a Child: Has kidnapped the pups on several occasions and once caused active injuries to two of them while cheating at basketball. And then there's his assistance in Ryder's kidnapping in the Mighty Pups special. Vocal Evolution: Mayor Humdinger's voice in the first season sounded very demanding and impatient but in the first half of the second season, he sounds more low-pitched and mannish. Until later episodes, his voice is less-demanding and more higher. Sid Swashbuckle "I'm a sneaky pirate, I am!"Voiced in English (Canada/US) by: Charles VandervaartA young pirate with a drive to steal anything he can get his hands on. He first appears in "Sea Patrol: Pups Save Puplantis". Alliterative Name: Sid Swashbuckle. Ambiguous Disorder: He appears to be a kleptomaniac. Attention Deficit... Ooh, Shiny!: Said word for word in "Sea Patrol: Pups Save Their Pirated Sea Patroler": "Shiny! Looks like something I need, need!" Benevolent Boss: Even though he never listens to Arrby's suggestions, Sid treats his first mate very well. Big Bad: He's the main villain of the Sea Patrol arc. The Bus Came Back: After two years and seasons of absence, he finally returned to the show in Season 7's "Pups Save the Pupmobiles". Color-Coded Eyes: His green eyes represent his ambition in stealing things. The Determinator: Implied in "Sea Patrol: Pups Save A Sunken Sloop", where he says he never gives up after Ryder asks him to give up the sloop. Dressed to Plunder: We are clothes, such as a tricorner hat, boots, jacket and bandanna. Dub Name Change: The French dub changed his surname to Laratisse. Evil Is Hammy: Quite possibly the hammiest villain of them all. "We need help! NEED IT!" Evil Redhead: Has red hair, and is very passionate about his piracy. Greed: Once he sees something, he decides he needs it, even if he already has several of the item in question. Jerk with a Heart of Gold: Come on; no one who takes care of (and steals to provide for) a dog can be 100% evil. Keet: He is fairly easily excitable. Sometimes to the point of knocking his hat over his eyes. Sid: Arrr! Well, I need All of Them, for something. Large Ham: Yells a lot of his lines, often slips into pirate-speak, gets really excited over small things...yep, definitely fits the bill. Lethally Stupid: In "Pups Save a Sunken Sloop", he just kept coming back, trying to take the sloop, even after it was made clear that the giant sea slug living in it would not allow that. Meaningful Name: A pirate with a surname based on "swashbuckler". However, he normally is referred to as a buccaneer. Moral Myopia: In "Sea Patroller in favor of a seemingly better-looking ship (actually a shadow) by saying it's "not fair". Ryder is quick to point out his hypocrisy. Narcissist: Shows shades of this, often calling himself a clever/sneaky pirate. Never Bareheaded: When he throws his hat to the ground in frustration in "Sea Patrol: Pups Save Puplantis", he's shown to wear a bandanna underneath the hat. A Pirate 400 Years Too Late: He displays multiple stereotypes associated with pirates. Pirate: Well, obviously. Red Oni, Blue Oni to Arrby's Blue Oni. Sid has none of Arrby's empathy and self-control, instead being a selfish Large Ham. Rule of Three: He doesn't just need, need, need, needs it. Sailor's Ponytail: A pirate with a ponytail. "Scooby-Doo" Hoax: In "Pups vs. Ouchy Paws", he and Arrrby dress up as a legendary ghost so he can steal Danny's new skateboard. Significant Green-Eyed Redhead: Has red hair and green eyes, and is the antagonist of the Sea Patrol episodes. Skewed Priorities: He didn't care that the stolen Clam of Puplantis was weighing down his ship by making so many pearls; he just wanted to keep his loot. Sticky Fingers: Tries to steal anything that catches his eye, even mundane objects like a Pirate. Fitting his status as a pirate. Sid: Arrr! Why are we moving slowly? Teens Are Monsters: A vaguely teen-looking villain. Vague Age: Despite looking like a teen, the wiki lists him as an adult.
Villain Song: He has one in "Sea Patrol: Pups Save Puplantis": "Sid the Pirate". Vocal Dissonance: In the UK dub, his voice sounds like a 40-year-old junkie, which contrasts him having a healthy teenage body. Youthful Freckles: If you look really closely, you can see that he has some freckles on his face. Harold Humdinger Voiced in English (Canada/US) by: Chance HurstfieldMayor Humdinger's nephew, a young inventor, and the main villain of the Mighty Pups special. Alliterative Name: Harold Humdinger. Childish Tooth Gap: He has a gap in his teeth. Child Prodigy: He's around the same age as Ryder and he's already an expert inventor, even though his inventions don't always work Didn't See That Coming: In "Mighty Pups, Charged Up: Pups Stop a Big Bad Bot", he was unprepared for the Mighty Pups, Super Paws: When Super Kitties Attack", his plan to carve out Adventure Bay from the mainland, creating an island he can rule over, and intends to rename "Harold Humdinger Kitties Attack", his plan to carve out Adventure Bay from the mainland, creating an island he can rule over, and intends to rename "Harold Humdinger Kitties Attack", his plan to carve out Adventure Bay from the mainland, creating an island he can rule over, and intends to rename "Harold Humdinger Kitties Attack", his plan to carve out Adventure Bay from the mainland, creating an island he can rule over, and intends to rename "Harold Humdinger Kitties Attack", his plan to carve out Adventure Bay from the mainland, creating an island he can rule over, and intends to rename "Harold Humdinger Kitties Attack", his plan to carve out Adventure Bay from the mainland, creating an island he can rule over, and intends to rename "Harold Humdinger Kitties Attack", his plan to carve out Adventure Bay from the mainland, creating an island he can rule over, and intends to rename "Harold Humdinger Kitties Attack", his plan to carve out Adventure Bay from the mainland, creating an island he can rule over, and intends to carve out Adventure Bay from the mainland he can rule over, and intends to carve out Adventure Bay from the mainland he can rule over a super from the mainland he can rule over a super from the mainland he can rule over a super from the mainland he can rule over a super from the mainland he can rule over a super from the mainland he can rule over a super from the mainland he can rule over a super from the mainland he can rule over a super from the mainland he can rule over a super from the mainland he can rule over a super from the mainland he can rule over a super from the mainland he can rule over a super from the mainland he can rule over a super from the mainland he can rule over a super from the mainland he can rule over a Island". Enfant Terrible: He may be a little boy, but that doesn't stop him from committing acts that are even worse than his uncle's. Evil Nephew: Albeit a rare example where the uncle is also evil. Freeze Ray: He builds one in "Mighty Pups, Super Paws: Pups Stop Harold's Big Freeze", and tries to use it to turn the whole world into his own frozen kingdom. Hypocrite: In "Mighty Pups, Super Paws: Pups Stop Harold's Big Freeze", his reaction to being frozen by Everest is to complain that it's "not nice to freeze people!" He does recognise this hypocrisy immediately after, though. I Meant to Do That: A Running Gag is the helmet of his supervillain costume dropping down over his eyes, with Harold readjusting it and invoking this. Insufferable Genius: He's as arrogant as his uncle, but actually has the intelligence to back it up. Irony: After being stuck in the arctic at the end of "Mighty Pups, Super Paws: Pups Stop Harold's Big Freeze", Harold admits that he actually has the intelligence to back it up. supervillain helmet tends to drop down over his eyes. The Starscream: At first, he simply goes along with his uncle's plans. But near the end of the special, he takes charge, stealing the meteor for himself. He does this again in "Mighty Pups, Super Paws: When Super Kitties Attack"; after Humdinger abandons their attempt to find a piece of the meteor to take a nap, Harold finds it himself and puts his own Evil Plan into action. In "Mighty Pups, Super Paws: Pups Stop Harold's Big Freeze", he snatches another meteor piece before his uncle can get it, and uses his returned powers to build a Freeze Ray, with Humdinger being its first victim. Technopath: The meteor gives him the ability to control and assemble machines with his mind. Ladybird Voiced in English (UK) by: Eleanor SnowdenThe main villain of "Mighty Pups, Super Paws: Meet the Mighty Twins". A thief with a taste for shiny objects who stumbles upon a necklace containing a fragment of the meteor that gave the pups superpowers.
She uses her new powers to go on a crime spree. Catchphrase: "If it shines, it's mine!" De-power: The necklace that gave her her powers is removed by Tuck. Flight: One of the abilities granted to her by the meteor fragment. Gag Nose: She has a big pointy nose that looks like a beak. Narcissist: The reason she steals shiny objects is so she can look at her reflection, and praise herself. Only Known by Their Nickname: Her real name is never mentioned. Running Gag: She is often referred to as "Birdlady", deeply annoying her. Sticky Fingers: She snatches up every shiny object she can get her hands on. Super Strength: Another of her powers, allowing her to lift even the golden Chickaletta statue.
Tron Lines: Her supervillain costume has glowing blue lines. Villain: Exit, Stage Left: She is last seen chasing after a crab that picked up her necklace. The Cheetah Voiced in English (Canada/US) by: Addison HolleyOne of the five racers who competes in the Adventure Bay 500 and is Mayor Humdinger's cousin. She is the Whoosh's fiercest competitor who uses glue, tire spikes, smoke screens, a plunger and a KRC Insignia that is infused with an EMP. She hatches a plan to steal the other racer's cars in order to be the last racer standing, which Humdinger is forced to do. When Humdinger accidentally kidnaps the Whoosh. she commands him to get him away from the Race until she wins. Animal Motifs: Name notwithstanding, her racing outfit is very obviously cheetah-themed, with her shirt having a cat face, her helmet with cat ears, her shoes having cat paws on the soles, and a spot pattern that adorns the helmet, sleeves and pants. This theming carries over to her car during the first race. The Bus Came Back: She returns in
"Pups Stop the Cheetah", nearly two years after her first appearance. Compressed Hair: She wears her hair in twin pigtails, which are somehow able to fit inside her racing helmet with no trouble at all. Crippling the Competition: Managed to defeat the Whoosh and Marshall at the first race and stealing the cars preventing three racers to race.
Sabotaging the Whoosh's vehicle twice. First by stopping him at the starting line and later causing him to crash into the field, spraining his arm. She uses the rope from her vehicle and slingshots to render Marshall dizzy. Fatal Flaw: Her Ego. She always aims to be first and resorts to cheating to win the race. Humiliation Conga: First, she loses the big race to Marshall. Then, dizzy from her last-ditch attempt at cheating backfiring, she runs afoul of her cousin's kitty carrier as they retreat. It's All About Me: Even more so then her cousin's kitty carrier as they retreat. It's All About Me: Even more so then her cousin. When Humdinger shows her spy footage of Marshall being trained by the Woosh, she initially dismisses it, due to not being in the footage herself. Moral Myopia: When one of her cheating attempts actually helps Marshall to keep up with her, she cries out "No fair!" Only Known by Their Nickname: Is only ever referred to by her racing name. I Shall Return: "The Cheetah Shall Return: "The Cheetah Shall Return!" (falls flat) "HEY! Wait for me!" Punny Name: For 2 reasons. Named after the Cheetah predator and she cheats during the race. Pimped-Out Car: She steals the other racers' cars to enhance her cheating gear. Related Differently in the Adaptation: The Japanese dub changes her relationship to Mayor Humdinger to niece and uncle instead of cousins. Removing the Rival: Managed to cripple the Whoosh, preventing him from racing in the Round the World Road Rally. Start My Own: In "Pups Stort the Cheetah", she decides to create her own racetrack, and attempts to destroy the jungle to do so. Ungrateful Bitch: In "Pups Stort the Cheetah". Her cousin invited her to stay over, and gives her the idea to steal the PAW Patroller. She shows no gratitude toward him for either of these, Eating all the food in his lair and callously leaving him in the dust. Duke of Flappington Voiced in English by: Ashton FrankThe Princess of Barkingburg's distant cousin, and the main villain of the Jet to the Rescue special. Bitch in Sheep's Clothing: He initially presents himself as friendly and kind... before revealing his true colors. Blatant Lies: After being defeated, he tries to pass off his actions as a "prank". I Lied: He forms an alliance with Sweetie to steal the Jewel for himself, instead having his pet eagle Jean-Claude do all the work. He also relies on Claw to do all the work in "Rescue Knights". Miles Gloriosus: Despite not flying himself, he considers himself the greatest pilot ever. Never My Fault: In "Rescue Knights".      roached Claw for an alliance in the first place. The Usurper: What he wants to be. His goal is to oust his cousin from the throne and make himself King of Barkingburg. Villain Team-Up: He strikes a bargain with Sweetie in his first appearance, only to doublecross her the first chance he gets. He allies himself with Claw during the "Rescue Knig subseries. Antagonist animals The Kitten Catastrophe Crew A sextet of kittens in similar gear to the PAW Patrol, Mayor Humdinger has sometimes used them to sabotage competitions with Mayor Goodway. Cats Are Mean: Depending on the Writer. While they are loyal to Humdinger, their first appearance had them show remorse and undo the damage they did. Their next appearance, however, has them right back to sabotaging things with glee. Cats Hate Water: Clearly averted in the case of Zuma's counterpart. Dirty Coward: In "Pup Fu", they all ganged up on Marshall, but ran away when the rest of the pups came to back him up. Even Mayor Humdinger calls them "cowardly kittens" in response. Dub Name Change: Unsurprisingly, the Kitten Catastrophe Crew is known as the Nyan Patrol in the Japanese dub. Enfant Terrible: They are kittens and are perfectly willing to assist Mayor Humdinger with his villainous schemes. Evil Counterpart: Well, not necessarily evil, but they are effectively an antithesis to the PAW Patrol, being a group that ruins, damages, and sabotages things on the orders issued out by their human organizer. In addition, none of them can talk, instead meowing like real cats. Even Evil Has Standards: While they are not evil, sometimes they won't agree with Mayor Humdinger's actions. In "Pups Save a Flying Kitty", when Alex points out how Mayor Humdinger was more upset about his socks than his lost kitten, the rest of the crew gives him ire looks, agreeing with Alex's point. Ignored Epiphany: While they showed remorse for their actions in their debut episode, the next episode has them go right back to gleefully sabotaging things anyway. Some things don't change, do they? No Name Given:
They are never given names on screen. If an episode summary mentions one of them (like "Pays Save a Flying Kitty"), they refer to them by the PAW Patrol, and having a kitten's paw in place of the usual pup paw insignia. Ungrateful Bastard: Like their owner, they rarely show any gratitude when the PAW Patrol saves them. Meow-Meow A robot cat created by Mayor Humdinger to be his entry for the cat show in "Pups Save the Cat Show". The Driver: She served as this for mayor Humdinger to be his entry for the cat show in "Pups Save the Cat Show". a Tour Bus". Dub Name Change: The Japanese dub replaces the generic-sounding "Meow-Meow" with the more provocative "Myargarita". Why it was changed to be a Punny Name on the cocktail drink is anyone's guess. Evil Counterpart: Could be seen as one to Robo-Dog, seeing as she is an additional, robotic member of the Kitten Catastrophe Crew.
Flight: Like Robo-Dog, she has jet boosters in her paws that allow her to do this. Metal Muncher: In "Pups Meet the Cat Pack", her new form requires her to eat lots of metal in order to keep her power levels up. Robot Me: Her appearance is based on Cali's. Suddenly Speaking: When Mayor Humdinger updraded Meow-Meow into the lion-like Hench Cat, she acquired the ability to speak in perfect human language, to Mayor Humdinger's surprise. Vocal Dissonance: In "Pups Meet the Cat Pack", she is accidentally upgraded into a larger form, and gains a voice - one which is very squeaky and high-pitched. Sweetie Voiced in English by: Anya CookeVoiced in Japanese by: Mana MiyamotoSweetie is a White Highland Terrier owned by the Princess of Barkingburg. She makes her debut appearance in the episode "Mission PAW: Quest for the Crown". Not content with simply being a pet, she has designs on the kingdom's crown. She has her own version of a pup pack, containing tools she utilizes for thievery. She also has a purple roadster which turns into a hovercraft. Anti-Hero: Becomes this in the Jet to the Rescue special. She still has her ambitions of coveting the crown afterwards, but has opened up to the idea of earning it legitimately as well as just swiping it off the Princess' head. In "Rescue Knights: Pups Save a Tournament", she competes without any underhanded tactics in mind, and was doing well until she unfortunately got caught in one of Claw's schemes. Big Bad: Of most of her episodes. Bitch in Sheep's Clothing (Heh...): Pun aside, she can act nice and pleasant when she wants to, but her true personality is never far from the surface. The Bus Came Back: After "Mission PAW: Pups Save the Royal Throne", she suffered a long absence from the series, returning in "Mission PAW: Pups Save a Royal Concert", over a year and a half later. The Cameo: She makes a brief appearance in the Ready, Race, Rescue special, trying to steal the princess's crown while she's distracted by the race. Card-Carrying Villain: Sweetie is aware of her misdeeds and takes pride in them, outright proclaiming herself to be bad and referring to Busby as her minion. Companion Cube: Her toy frog, Busby, whom she sometimes talks to as if it is alive. Cute Is Evil: She may seem sweet and cuddly, as her name suggests, but she is really a Spoiled Brat. Deadpan Snarker: Sweetie tends to be this sometimes, especially when annoyed. Didn't Think This Through: In "Mission PAW: Quest for the Crown", Sweetie attempts to escape by air in her hovercraft, but is chased by Skye. In an attempt to lose Skye, she performs a barrel roll, causing the crown of Barkingburg to fall off her head. Sweetie then unclips her seatbelt, dropping out of the hovercraft in an attempt to grab the crown. She immediately lampshades her poor decision by yelling "That was a bad idea!" Does Not Like Spam: "Mission PAW: Pups Save the Princess' Pals" reveals that she can't stand regular puppy food. "Rescue Knights: Pups Break the Ice" shows that she can't stand regular puppy food. "Rescue Knights: Pups Break the Ice" shows that she can't stand regular puppy food. "Rescue Knights: Pups Break the Ice" shows that she has a very low tolerance for spicy food. Dub Name Change: An odd version in the French dub; the dialogue calls her Vicky, but the subtitles call her Monange. Easily Forgiven: Played with. Despite her misdeeds, the Princess just can't stay mad at Sweetie... though she always sends her to her doghouse as punishment. Enemy Mine: She works with the PAW Patrol to stop the Duke of Flappington in the Jet to the Rescue special. Enfante Terrible: She is a pup and evil. Even Evil Has Standards: In the Jet to the Rescue special. As much as she covets the Princess' throne, Sweetie has no desire to harm her to get it. She is also horrified when the Duke of Flappington attempts to drop Big Benji on the castle. Evil Brit: A naughty pup with a refined British accent. It's worth noting that she's one of the few characters on the show to receive no dub in the British English version, being covered by the same actress. Evil Laugh: She has one, which usually ends with a snort. Frame-Up: After stealing the crown, she frames Chase with the theft. Ironic Name: She is anything but sweet, though she does eventually have her moments, such as in her brief cameo in "Pups Save a Bah Humdinger". Light Is Not Good: Her fur is pure white, and she is a sneaky and conniving pup. Noblewoman's Laugh: First heard in her cameo in Ready, Race, Rescue, she is fittingly given one in the Japanese dub, though the snort was removed when Season 4 has officially aired in Japan. Most likely because of cultural differences, especially since Japanese kids will learn she has a heroic side three seasons in advance, with the Jet to the Rescue special airing in Japanese theaters concurrently with her debut season. Performance Anxiety: She is revealed to suffer from this in "Mission PAW: Pups Save a Royal Concert", freezing up in front of the crowd gathered to see Luke Stars.
"Scooby-Doo" Hoax: In Mission PAW: Royally Spooked, she tries to claim the castle of Barkingburg for herself by remotely controlling the suits of armor there, hoping to make the Princess and Earl believe it's haunted and make them abandon it. The Snack Is More Interesting: In "Rescue Knights: Quest for the Dragon's Tooth", she is more interested in getting food than in what's happening around her. Spoiled Brat: After briefly being allowed to wear the crown, she orders a servant to bring her a hundred hamburgers, with the intention of taking a single bite out of every one of them! Fun! Token Heroic Orc: Inverted. She is the first pup to play a villainous role on the show. Troll: Sweetie is very mischievous and loves to mess with others, specifically the PAW Patrol in the first two Mission PAW episodes, but doesn't show any gratitude in either case. Averted in "Rescue Knights: Pups Save a Dozing Dragon", where she thanks Marshall for waking her up from her smoke-induced stupor without any backhanded comments. Villain with Good Publicity: Once she frames Chase, she makes herself look like a hero by "recovering" the crown from him, and for a brief time is made the Queen of Barkingburg (until the PAW Patrol expose her lies). Arrby Voiced in English (Canada/US) by: Meesha ContrerasA dachshund pup who is the first appears in "Sea Patrol: Pups Save Puplantis". Mr. Nibbles/The Copycat Voiced in English (Canada/US) by: Callum ShonikerClick here to see him as The

Cats Are Mean: He beats out the Kitten Catastrophe Crew in terms of evilness. Cats Are Superior: He is a cat, and is arguably the most dangerous villain in the show so far. Copycat Mockery: He has a habit of mockingly repeating the words of those who annoy him. Department of Redundancy Department: The names he gives to each of his schemes Enfant Terrible: Presumably a kitten, and he's evil. Even Evil Has Loved Ones: Everything he does in his debut appearance is to get his owner's attention.

Frame-Up: In the Original 5s episode "Pups Vs. a Copycat Marshall", he steals Marshall's Mighty Vehicle and uses his powers to frame Marshall for causing trouble around Adventure Bay. Green-Eyed Monster: He's jealous of the Mighty Pups because he thinks Hailey likes them more than him, which is why he wants to become more powerful than is pleasant and friendly, but loves to cause trouble just like his teammates. The Big Guy: Dwayne is often eneamoured by cute creatures (like kittens). Compressed Hair: Gasket has a lock of gray-and-white white hair that hangs down over her eyes, and is somehow able to fit under her helmet. The Ditz: Dwayne isn't very bright. For the Evulz: They cause trouble simply for the fun of it. Hubcap, being a bulldog, is the shortest of the Pack, but also their overly pushy-leader. Never My Fault: According to Gasket, Hubcap and Gasket are both named for machine parts. Dwayne, not so much. Only Sane Man: Dwayne is the only one to think that jumping into the Adventure Bay ferris wheel might be a bad idea. Reused Character Design: Hubcap and Gasket's designs are heavily modified versions of Rubble and Everest's. Dwayne is the only one with a wholly original design. Spikes of Villainy: Their helmets and Pup-Packs all have spikes on them. Ungrateful Bastard: Hubcap nevers show any gratitude toward the PAW Patrol whenever they get him and his crew out of trouble. Wrench Wench: Gasket is an amateur inventor. Claw Voiced in English by: Kit RakusenThe main antagonist of the "Rescue Knights" subseries, Claw is a Doberman pup and was a knight of Barkingburg before his ambition cost him his knighthood. His goal is to prove he's the best in all the land by taming a powerful red dragon he calls "Sparks". Cheaters Never Prosper: In "Rescue Knights: Pups Save a Tournament", he attempts to use Sparks to sabotage his competition in the tournament, a plan which totally fails. Dragon Rider: Desperately wants to be one to the point it cost him his knighthood. He particularly sets his eyes on a red, purple-fire-breathing dragon he dubs as "Sparks". He gets his first taste of a successful dragon ride with the help of a magical dragon tooth that makes any dragon obey its wearer's commands. Evil Brit: A Barkingburg native and speaks in a posh accent? Unmistakably British. Wants to burn Barkingburg to the ground as disproportionate retribution for losing his knighthood? Unmistakably evil. Fallen Hero: The first antagonist in the series to be portrayed as such. He was stripped of his knighthood when he, to prove his greatness, tried to tame a dragon from the northern highlands, which is forbidden as the dragons are dangerous unless left undisturbed.

Presumably, since he was worthy enough for being knighted in the first place, he performed heroic deeds on par to that of the PAW Patrol, meaning he was Barkingburg's equivalent of a PAW Patrol all by himself. Glory Seeker: He wants to prove that he's the greatest knight in the land, and to him, that means taming the most dangerous creatures in Barkingburg, which are literal fire-breathing, flying dragons. Green-Eyed Monster: He has dark-green eyes and believes he's the only knight Barkingburg needs. He doesn't take it kindly when the Princess of Barkingburg knights six other pups to take his place. Phlebotinum Breakdown: Unusually for a character with a pup-pack, he has to argue with his own equipment to make it barely follow his commands, making him fumble his feats that would otherwise be impressive. most powerful of all the knights, which he succeeded at briefly when he was in command of Sparks. Symbolizing the degradation of his knighthood. Ungrateful Bastard: In "Rescue Knights: Pups Save Excalibark", he shows no gratitude toward Chase for saving him from falling, since his plan was still ruined. "Thanks for nothing!" Sparks A fantastical monstrous creature hailing from the Dragon as you'd expect: huge, red, immensely strong, can fly, and can breathe purple flame.

Except he behaves more like a dog than the Doberman who tenuously commands him. Technicolor Fire: His flames are purple.  involving her pet chicken, Chickaletta. Ambiguously Brown: It's not clear what race Goodway is supposed to be, though she resembles an African-American. Her niece and nephew, but no children of her own. Unless you count Chickaletta, whom she dotes upon. Demoted to Extra: She only makes two appearances in the movie. Early Installment Character-Design Difference: She wore teal shoes and a white blouse in Season One. In later seasons, she wears a purple skirt and is feminine...but we wouldn't exactly call her graceful. Large Ham: She tends to get a wee bit melodramatic when she needs help. Or whenever she speaks, really. Meaningful Name: Her name comes from the term "in a good way", citing that her intentions are always good. Reasonable Authority Figure: Despite being overly dramatic, Goodway is a respectable mayor, who only wants what's best for her city. Serious Business: In her distress calls, Mayor Goodway tends to regard every issue, whether minor (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a bat out of the city hall belfry) or major (such as getting a b episodes show him getting into competitions with his cousin. In "Sea Patrol: Pups Save a Frozen Flounder", he insisted on repeated thumb wrestling matches, despite the fact that Horatio had won every single one. Everything Sounds Sexier in French: Skye seems to think so. Whenever Francois needs rescuing, she can be heard saying "Poor Francois!" and she fawns over him in "Pups Save the Turbots." French Jerk: He has a habit of trying to claim all the credit for any discoveries he and his cousin make together. He also often talks down to the Cap'n, thinking he is the superior cousin, and often tries to best him in competition. Giftedly Bad: He hasn't taken a single good photograph, but considers photography his favourite hobby. Glory Hound: He's eager to become famous, usually by taking pictures of rare and/or undiscovered creatures. How Do You Say: In "Pups Save the Critters", he stumbles when trying to remember an English word. "I am...how you say it...good?" I Reject Your Reality: In "Pups Save a Frozen Flounder", he claims that he can't be beat in thumb wrestling... despite the fact that Horatio has bested him every time. Leeroy Jenkins: Has a tendency to recklessly rush into things. Nature Lover: He gets carried away with trying to locate rare creatures (including elephants, giant sea slugs, and blue-footed booby birds). Narcissist: A textbook example. Says things to locate rare creatures (including elephants, giant sea slugs, and blue-footed booby birds). like "I am amazing, if I do say so myself," and "I was a brilliant young zoologist...I am such a genius." In "Sea Patrol: Pups Save the Pier", he enters a sculpture of himself in an art contest, believing it to be a "masterpiece". Never My Fault: In "Sea Patrol: Pups Save a Frozen Flounder", his insistence on repeated thumb wrestling matches with his cousin leads to the Flounder getting trapped in frozen waters. When the PAW Patrol arrives on the scene, he makes a point of announcing that it wasn't his fault. Red Oni; Blue Oni: Francois is an enthusiastic extrovert (red), contrasting with Cap'n Turbot's more intellectual and calm (blue) personality. Round Hippie Shades: Francois wears a pair of perfectly round, purple-tinted glasses. Silly Walk: His run is just as awkward and clunky as Cap'n Turbot's. Skewed Priorities: In "Sea Patrol: Pups Save the Pier", he was more concerned with saving his statue of himself than getting off the unstable pier. Smart People Wear Glasses: He's a zoologist who wears a pair of round glasses. Strong Family Resemblance: To the Cap'n. Surprisingly Good Foreign Language: Pronounces French words and phrases with surprising accuracy. Toxic Friend Influence: His competitive nature tends to bring out the worst in both himself and his cousin. You Put the "X" in "XY": According to Mayor Goodway in "Pups Save a Tightrope Walker," "Francois puts the

A Day in the Limelight: In "Pups and Katie Stop the Barking Kittens", Katie takes charge of the PAW Patrol while Ryder is away. Hair of Gold, Heart of Gold: Katie has blonde hair, and is a very pleasant cast member. Improbable Age: She's around the same age as Ryder and runs a pet salon. Kindhearted Cat Lover: She has a pet cat named Cali, who she treats as well as she does everyone else. Nice Girl: Very kind and even-tempered. Out of Focus: Got hit with this in Season 5, where she only had six appearances, the lowest of any season so far. Pink

Of course, it was shown to be All Just a Dream, with Rubble nodding off before Giant Alex's appearance. Raised by Grandparents: Neither of his parents appear in the series, as he apparently lives with his grandfather.

Circus Episode: If he's in the episode, then expect it to focus around his circus and/or his animals. New Job as the Plot Demands: We find out that he's also a great sports coach, capable of teaching at least his monkeys how to play soccer and kickball, in "All Star Pups!". Repulsive Ringmaster: Strongly averted. He's very kind and thoughtful to his animals perfectly well, lion growls and all. Unlike Cap'n Turbot, however, he doesn't need to speak animal himself for his animals to understand him Stage Magician: He shows off some cool tricks of his own, mostly making things like another top hat appear out of thin air. Engineer Ed Voiced in English (Canada/US) by: Blair Williams (uncredited, "Pups Save a Train", "Pup Pup Boogie"), Ron PardoThe train engineer who first appeared in "Pups Save a Train." Originally just known as "Mr.
 Engineer" and often confused as being the same person as a bus driver (Mr. Hudson), a freighter captain, and a construction worker, his seniority and frequent appearances have elevated him to be more than a background character. He's close particularly with Rubble. Space alien and his mother A mother-son pair of diminutive green aliens who first appeared in "Pups Save the Space Alien". They visit Adventure Bay often and have since started befriending the citizens. First Contact with, it's Mayor Goodway, who was visiting at the time, who gets the honor. Flying Saucer:
Their mode of transportation is the classic disc-shaped ship, which looks like something straight out of the The Jetsons. Innocent Aliens: The space alien just wanted to go back home to his mother after crashing in Adventure Bay. They come introduced in mid-Season 3. He was inspired to become a daredevil after watching Ryder and the PAW Patrol. His stunts often cause him to get into trouble. Accidental Hero: In "Ultimate Rescue: Pups Save a Movie Monster", he followed the pups around as they saved the day, and got enough footage to complete the film. However, he had no idea his camera was turned on, thus this trope occurs. Attention Whore: In his later appearances, he constantly livestreams his stunts. Blush Sticker: Like other human children, he has rosy cheeks. Character Development: In his most recent appearances, he actually doesn't do anything stupid and instead is engaged in safer activities that just happen to go wrong. Childish Tooth Gap: Danny has a noticeable gap in his teeth. Cool Helmet: He usually wears one while doing his stunts. Dramatically Missing the Point: He was inspired to become a daredevil after seeing Ryder perform a daring leap with his ATV, overlooking the fact that Ryder only performed that act to carry out a rescue, not for fun or glory Early Installment Character-Design Difference: When he first appeared, he wore an outfit consisting of a white-and-green raglan and jeans. Everyone Has Standards: In "Pups Save the Skydivers". As reckless as he is, even he knows you shouldn't try skydiving in strong winds. Fearless Fool: At first. But when a stunt goes wrong, he's quick to call out for help. Fiery Redhead: While he's not hot-tempered, he is easily excited and definitely has energy to spare. In "Pups and the Mystery of the Driverless Snow Cat", he's shown to have an interest in engineering. Humiliation Conga: In "Pups Save the Soapbox Derby", he spends the entire race in last place, with his go-kart consistently being outpaced by a turtle. Innocently Insensitive: He doesn't mean any ill...but he's still pretty disobedient and reckless. Insistent Terminology: He insists on being called "Daring Danny X" by everyone. Karmic Nod: In "Pups Save A Freighter", after being splashed by a whale, he admits that he probably deserved it. Leeroy Jenkins: Always throwing himself into dangerous situations. However, he seems to have mellowed out in Season 5 and 6. No, he just tries to blow it off. The Load: Replaced Alex for this role. Danny's reckless stunts always land him in trouble and require the PAW Patrol to save him Slowly becoming averted though. Noodle People: Downplayed; he's pretty lanky, but not to the point where it looks unnatural. Out of Character: For some reason, in "Pups Save a Freighter", he doesn't insist on being called by his nickname. Race Lift: Downplayed; he remains white throughout the series, but Season 8 gave him more of a suntan. Social Media Before Reason: In "Pups Save a Kooky Climber", he refuses to let Skye save him until he can record the save on his phone's camera. Unwitting Instigator of Doom: In "Pups and the Mystery of the Driverless Snow Cat", where his remote control drone disrupts the signal of Everest's snow cat, causing it to go haywire. Vague Age: While he looks about the same age as Ryder (maybe a little older), he sounds like a teen. However, Dawson Casting may be the cause of this. Verbal Tic: He says the word "extreme" a lot. Vocal Dissonance: Danny is a kid, yet he sounds like an adult. Vocal Evolution: In Seasons 3-4, his voice was very deep and lightly raspy. In Seasons 5-6, his voice is slightly higher and more nasal. Weaksauce Weakness: A stuntman in the making...who gets seasick. Why Did It Have to Be Snakes?: In "Pups Bear-ly Save Danny", it's revealed he is terrified of bears.  Interspecies Friendship: He has made friends with a beaver whom he dubbed as "Buddy". Mr. Wingnut Voiced in English (Canada/US) by: Dan ChameroyAn inventor and a cook who first appeared in "Pups Save a Robo-Saurus". He and his wife run a burger stand in the middle of the desert, which expands to a ranch later on. Gadgeteer Genius: His inventions do work, but he'll dip into Bungling Inventor territory when the plot needs him to. Happily Married: To Mrs. Wingnut. Living Statue: Created Robo-saurus, a giant robotic dinosaur, to attract customers to his stand, but some mischievous gophers make it go haywire. One-Note Cook: His burger stand only serves... burgers. However, that doesn't mean it's just hamburgers, but can also be anything like a peanut burger. Smart House: Tries to build one for Uncle Otis in "Pups Save Uncle Otis in "Pups Save Uncle Otis from His Cabin". You can figure out from the episode name that it didn't work out. Mrs. Wingnut Voiced in English (Canada/US) by: Shoshana SperlingThe wife of Mr. Wingnut who also first appeared in "Pups Save a Robo-Saurus". Ms. Marjorie Voiced in English (UK) by: Frances WhiteVoiced in English (UK) by: Frances she surprisingly athletic. Hidden Depths: In "Pups Save Ms. Marjorie's House", she is able to handle Rubble's hoverboard quite well, citing her days as Adventure Bay's surf champion in her youth. Pink Means Feminine: Wears a pink cardigan. Prim and Proper Bun: Has this hairstyle. Princess of Barkingburg Voiced in English by: Caoimhe JuddHeir to the throne of Barkingburg, and owner of Sweetie, in spite of all her misdeeds. Ambiguously Brown: Olive-skinned, but her ethnicity is unknown. Blush Sticker: Just like most other human children. The Cameo: Briefly appears in he Ready, Race, Rescue, watching the racers drive through Barkingburg. Cool Crown: She wears a crown on her head that looks quite impressive. Everyone Calls Him "Barkeep": She is only ever referred to as "Princess". Even Sweetie, her own pet, calls her this. Fangirl: In "Mission PAW: Quest for the Crown", she stated that Chase is her favorite PAW Patrol pup, even requesting that he guard the crown of Barkingburg. Friend to All Living Things: "Mission PAW: Pups Save the Princess' Pals" shows that she has an entire section of her estate dedicated to taking care of sick and injured animals. High-Class Gloves: She's a princess, and wears a pair of white gloves. Horrible Judge of Character: She does get better but why anyone would fall for Sweetie's Bitch in Sheep's Clothing routine repeatedly is a question of the ages. King Incognito: In "Rescue Knights: Pups Save a Tournament", she covers herself in a full suit of armor so she can enter a tournament for knights without getting recognized, simply to have fun without the Earl worrying about her safety. Nightmare Fetishist: She is clearly fascinated by the supposed haunting of the castle in "Mission PAW: Royally Spooked", although she does admit to being a little creeped out when she sees one of the suits of armor moving by itself. True Blue Femininity: She wears an aqua-blue dress. Youthful Freckles: Hers aren't as noticeable as that of Ace or Danny, but a closeup of her face from "Mission PAW: Quest For The Crown" shows she has these. Earl of Barkingburg Voiced in English by: Adrian TrussThe Princess of Barkingburg's loyal companion. The Cameo: Briefly appears in he Ready, Race, Rescue, watching the racers drive through Barkingburg. Cool Old Guy: Perfectly willing to play tea party with the Princess. Everyone Calls Him "Barkeep": He is just referred to as the Earl, since his real name is unknown. Reasonable Authority Figure: He is level-headed and accepting, and likes to keep things well in order around the castle. Ron Rapidfire A racing commentator that debuts in Ready, Race, Rescue. Motor Mouth: He comments on the races quite quickly, though he admits that even he is having trouble describing the events of the big race. Riff Rockenbock Voiced in English by: Melanie LeishmanOne of the five racers who competes in the Adventure Bay 500. She appears to enjoy rock and roll music and has speakers put into her car. Gale-Force Sound: The speakers on her car can actually push it along, granting it more speed. Lionel Lightspeed Voiced in English by: Julius ChoOne of the five racers who competes in the Adventure Bay 500. He is considered to have high IQ and conquers that his car is significantly faster than the speed of light, mainly due to the solar panels his car. The Power of the Sun: His car is solar-powered. Willy "Wide Wheels" Jr. Voiced In English by: Matthew GouveiaOne of the five racers who competes in the Adventure Bay 500. He has a southern accent and is the son of the unseen Willy "Wide Wheels" Jr. Voiced In English by: Matthew GouveiaOne of the five racers who competes in the Adventure Bay 500. Wheels" Sr. Like daddy always says: "Watch out for the Wide Wheels!" The Whoosh Voiced in English by: Joseph MotikiOne of the five racers who competes in the Adventure Bay 500 and is Marshall's favorite racer. His car is powered by a super turbo ten cylinder nitrous infused engine and he has teeth that are shiny enough to rival Chip Skylark!

Marshall's lack of confidence causes him to refuse to compete in the race and join the pups in rescuing The Whoosh after he was accidentally kidnapped by the KCC. Marshall felt bad because he didn't race in his place, but the Whoosh after he was accidentally kidnapped by the KCC. Competitor: He races because it's fun, not because he wants to win. Creature of Habit: As Marshall points out during the last lap, and also of eating an energy bar. Crowd Chant: One of the audiences with Ryder and the pups cheers for Marshall. He's Back!: After the PAW Patrol rescued him. He coached Marshall at the final lap. Nice Guy: A friendly fellow who is also encouraging and kind toward Marshall. Hailey Daily Voiced in English by: Anthony SardinhaAn explorer who is famous for getting lost. Bold Explorer: Travels the world in a hot-air balloon. The Ditz: Definitely not one of the brightest adults in the series. He even mistook an alligator for a reindeer when he arrived in the jungle (mistaking that for the North Pole despite there being no snow). Nice Guy: For all his flaws, he is a very friendly and amiable fellow. No Sense of Direction: His best-known trait. He always ends up going the wrong way and never winds up where he intends to go. Wrong Line of Work: An "explorer" with No Sense of Direction, and a complete lack of knowledge regarding animals with No Sense of Direction, and a complete lack of knowledge regarding animals with No Sense of Direction, and a complete lack of knowledge regarding animals with No Sense of Direction, and a complete lack of knowledge regarding animals with No Sense of Direction, and a complete lack of knowledge regarding animals with No Sense of Direction, and a complete lack of knowledge regarding animals with No Sense of Direction, and a complete lack of knowledge regarding animals with No Sense of Direction, and a complete lack of knowledge regarding animals with No Sense of Direction, and a complete lack of knowledge regarding animals with No Sense of Direction, and a complete lack of knowledge regarding animals with No Sense of Direction, and a complete lack of knowledge regarding animals with No Sense of Direction, and a complete lack of knowledge regarding animals with No Sense of Direction, and a complete lack of knowledge regarding animals with No Sense of Direction, and a complete lack of knowledge regarding animals with No Sense of Direction, and a complete lack of knowledge regarding animals with No Sense of Direction and No Sen

she insults Mayor Goodway, Chickaletta, and Adventure Bay itself. The Rival: To Mayor Goodway in "Pups Save a Runaway Rooster". In stark contrast to Mayor Humdinger, she doesn't cheat, her animals actually treat her with respect and listen to her. Cowgirl Beryl Voiced in English (Canada/US) by: Stephany SekiThe rootinest, tootinest, tootinest redheaded game show host ever, appearing in "Pups Save a Game Show". Cowboy: The Distaff Counterpart, of course. Like any good cowgirl, the first word she yells is "YEEHAW". Game Show that features jumping in giant cowboy boots and throwing horseshoes, among other cowboy things. Spud Voiced in English (Canada/US) by: Ron PardoThe official representative of "The Book of Unique and Extraordinary Vegetables", who determines which vegetables should be declared as vegetable wonders of the world. Meaningful Name: His name is "Spud", and is only interested in rare rainbow potatoes. Hurricane Harrigan Voiced in English (Canada/US) by: Temapare HodsonA master windsurfer appearing in "Pups Save a Windsurfer". He was good friends with Ms. Marjorie before he went off seeking "the big waves". Zuma speaks very highly of him. Cool Old Guy: Around the same age as Ms. Marjorie, and a very laidback individual.
Surfer Dude: The Hawaiian variety, substituting Surfer Speak with Hawaiian expressions like mahalo and kokua. Helga Humdinger Voiced in English (Canada/US) by: Jayne EastwoodMayor Humdinger who doesn't have any of the usual Humdinger who doesn't have any of the usual Humdinger who doesn't have any of the usual Humdinger Woiced in English (Canada/US) by: Jayne EastwoodMayor Humdin befriending their mother, Cassie, in "Pups Save the Kitties and the Kiddies". Spoiled Brat: As seen in "Pups Solve the Missing Art", their mother allows them to do whatever they please. Cassie Voiced in English (Canada/US) by: Julie Sype Random citizens That's not all of them, of course. There is a group of Recurring Extras that pop up frequently in the series. As a whole Flat Character: Most of them only exist to be rescued or to cheer the Patrol on. No Name Given: Except for Roger, none of them are named. Precious's owner Voiced in English by: Berkley SilvermanPrecious's owner of a kitten named Precious. Cameraman for "Hello," Adventure Bay!" who first appeared in "Pup a Doodle Do." He has since been the go-to cameraman for any show set in Adventure Bay. Left It In: What was supposed to be a day about Adventure Bay's history turns into a search-and-rescue for Chickaletta, which he didn't mind at all since it had action, comedy, drama, and the fact you can never rescue too many chickens. No Name Given: He's just there to point the camera at something or someone, usually Mayor Goodway. Foggy Bottom Boomers at something or someone, usually Mayor Goodway. recurring extra alongside the other Adventure Bay citizens. One-Shot Character: Only appears in their debut episode to be Adventure Bay's rivals and never again (except the redhead). They were perhaps the catalyst to the Kitten Catastrophe Crew's creation and Mayor Humdinger's rise as the show's main antagonist, as episodes that involve outsmarting rivals (instead of natural disasters, lost chickens and birdbrained adults) have become more frequent after this one. Reused Character Design: They all resemble Ryder but with different hair and skin tone. RogerVoiced in English by: Uncredited actorRoger is a truck driver who specializes in delivering frozen foods. Other animals Wally Chickaletta Chickaletta is Mayor Goodway's pet chicken of my heart." Animal Sweet on Object: In "Pups Save a Cuckoo Clock", she falls for the wooden cuckoo bird in Jake's antique clock. Attack of the 50-Foot Whatever:

In "Mighty Pups, Super Paws: Pups Save a Giant Chicken", exposure to the superpower-granting meteor causes Chickaletta tends to be pretty oblivious to what's going on around her. Dub Name Change: Gallinetta in the French dub. Kylletta in the Danish dub.
Hidden Depths: Despite being out of it for the most part, Chickaletta is quite good at playing Pup Pup Boogie. Pup-Fu! reveals she's also skilled at a martial art called Hen-Kido. The Stoic: Sometimes, in emergencies, when the Mayor is referring to her, she is either taking the situation in stride or napping. Not So Stoic: In some episodes, such as "Air Patrol: Pups Save a Flying Chicken", she actually does show the appropriate level of panic for the situation. Unwitting Instigator of Doom: In "Pups and the Ghost Pirate", she actually does show the appropriate level of panic for the situation. she's afraid of bugs. Cali Voiced in English by: Julie LemieuxCali is Katie's pet cat who often ends up in predicaments. Big Eater: One episode established her as having a big appetite. Butt-Monkey: She ends up becoming one of these, to a degree, because of the situations she ends up in. Although she often brings it on herself. Cats Are Mean: Averted, as she gets along with the pups. Although she can be quite cranky. Designated Victim: She tends to find herself in trouble on a regular basis, often needing rescue from the PAW Patrol as a result. Didn't Think This Through: To be fair, she's a non-anthropomorphized cat. But on the other hand, she does have a habit of just going after something she wants (such as a tuna sandwich in a backpack hooked on a caboose railing), and getting into trouble because she doesn't think things through. Kick the Son of a Bitch: In one episode, she gives the Kitten Catastrophe Crew their just desserts by letting them float away in giant bubbles. Silent Snarker: Often shows her annoyance or exasperation by rolling her eyes. Stock Animal Name: Played With somewhat. While Cali is an alternate spelling of the very popular Callie, the latter is primarily used for calico/tortoiseshell cats rather than gray/white cats like Cali. Token Heroic Orc: The only recurring cat in the show who isn't a villain before Wild Cat was introduced. Unwitting Instigator of Doom: In "Pups and the Ghost Pirate", she and Chickaletta run about, unwittingly causing the pirate ship to drift off with some of the cast trapped on it. Bettina Farmer Yumi's beloved farmhouse cow who first appeared in "Pups Fall Festival". Dull Surprise: She's almost the animal version of the Unfazed Everyman. Loud noises will startle her a lot more than dangerous proximity to giant boys and vegetables or forced floatation from alien tech and magical Christmas stars. Garbie Farmer Yumi's and Farmer Yumi's Alley Yumi's Al gardens of tulips, to Mayor Humdinger's chagrin. Suddenly Speaking: In "Pups Save a Flying Farmhouse", Farmer Al finds out that Garbie can talk (with a deep baritone provided by Ron Pardo) and Walinda. Baby Whale The Baby Whale lives in the ocean near Adventure Bay and is pictured on the town flag. Babies Make Everything Better: The pups are always happy to see the Baby Whale around. Cartoon Whale: She has a slightly square-shaped body with greyish-blue skin. The same applies to her mother, only she's completely gray and has bluish spots. Intelligible Unintelligible: As seen in "Pups Save Friendship Day", Zuma is seemingly able to communicate with the Baby Whale and her mother. The Speechless: As mentioned above, she can't talk and communicates by waving her flippers. Unwitting Instigator of Doom: In "Pups Save the Diving Bell", she thinks the Turbots' diving bell is a toy and plays with it like a volleyball. This causes the bell to break and fall to the seafloor - with Cap'n Turbot and Francois inside. Mother Whale — Mandy A mischievous monkey, whom the PAW Patrol first encountered after she recovered from a cold. She currently resides in the jungle. Awesome Moment of Crowning: In "Tracker Meets the Pups", she is revealed to be the long-lost queen of the monkey temple after finding its crown. Dub Name Change: Matti in the French dub. Interspecies Friendship: She is good friends with Carlos. Mischief-Making Monkey: The mischief she does can range from the usual banana-throwing antics, to stealing objects like Ryder's Pup-Pad and ancient crowns, to life-threatening ones like driving a van towards an incoming train. Nevertheless, she's not inherently malicious and she's always glad to see Ryder, Carlos, and the pups. Little Hootie A young purple owl who first appeared in "Pups Save a Hoot". He has appeared fairly frequently since then, sometimes as a member of Alex's Mini Patrol. Cute Owl: Small? Round? Hoots? Yes. Dub Name Change: Known as "Fu-chan" in the Japanese dub, or more precisely, "ふうちゃん". Interspecies Friendship: With Chase. Missing Mom: Averted. His debut episode is about rescuing his mother. However, he is shown to be living alone after that, with no mention where his mother is now. One can only assume he left the nest and chose to live in Adventure Bay. Only Sane Man: True to his species, he's the only member of the Mini Patrol who exhibits any form of competence. That may or may not include Alex. Owls Ask "Who?": His debut episode is chock-full of them. Chase even gets a knock-knock joke out of him. Giant sea slug A giant pink sea slug that resides at the bottom of Adventure Bay. It first appeared in "Pups Save a Diving Bell". Artistic License - Biology: If it's based on anything else. Sea slugs in real life also probably don't reach the size of a small ship. And they don't giggle. Probably. Eye on a Stalk: Naturally, being a slug. It adroitly uses them as though they were limbs, causing panic and breaking the laws of physics in some cases. Royal Kittens (Henry and Elizabeth) Two kittens owned by the Princess of Barkingburg. Reused Character Design: They both have a modified version of Cali's character model. Sixth Ranger: Mayor Humdinger tries to make them up in versions of Everest and Tracker's outfits. Tertiary Sexual Characteristics: Elizabeth wears a bow on the top of her head, while Henry wears a bow tie. Unwitting Pawn: In "Mission PAW: Quest for the Crown", Sweetie used a toy mouse to get them to run past Chase, setting off his allergies and giving Sweetie the distraction she needed to steal the crown of Barkingburg. Fictional Posthumous Characters Apollo the Super Pup Saves the day, his own super way. Voiced in English by: Lyon Smith (uncredited) A fictional character from a Show Within a Show of the same name. Apollo is a superhero dog who saves bunnies from the Spider King. Art Shift: He usually appears as a 2D sprite, but in "Pups Save Apollo", he finally gets a 3D model. Awesome Mc Cool Name: Apollo sure is a cool name. Black Bead Eyes: His 2D sprite has these. When he appears in 3D, however, it's revealed he has Innocent Blue Eyes. Chuck Cunningham Syndrome: He and his show are never mentioned again after Season 3, which is especially jarring since the Season 3 finale showed that they're beloved by the citizens of Adventure Bay so much that missing the Apollo the Super Pup Super Special counts as an emergency. Perhaps the special is a series finale. Distressed Dude: In "Pups Save Apollo", he gets trapped in a spider web and the pups have to rescue him. Flight: His primary ability. Light Is Good: A show-white pup who is a superhero. Primary-Color Champion: His uniform is red, yellow, and blue. Superheroes Wear Capes: Wears a red cape with blue trim. Why Did It Have to Be Snakes?: Despises spiders, especially the Spider King. Jeremy the Genie A friendly genie-in-training who was trapped in a jack-in-the-box and released by Rubble. All Just a Dream: He was just a part of Rubble's dream sequence in "Pups Find a Genie". Benevolent Genie: Grants Rubble's wishes without any hint of trickery, and even uses his magic to help the PAW Patrol without being asked to do so. However, they don't always end up the way it should since he's still new at the job. Genie in a Bottle: He pops out after Rubble winds up an old jack-in-the-box found in Farmer Al's barn. Our Genies Are Different: Instead of a lamp, his living space is a jack-in-the-box, though it is ornamented with gold lamps on its sides. Cassandra the Cruelest Kitten Captain Blackfur A pirate pup who used to sail the seas of Adventure Bay. Dressed to Plunder: Wears an eye patch, gold earring, and a tricorner hat. Identical Grandson: He looks just like Rubble, but with a goatee.
However, it has yet to be confirmed if he is Rubble's ancestor. Ironic Name: No, he does not have black fur.
