You'll need to use iTunes on your computer, and follow a few steps to convert your desired song to a special file format, then sync it with your iPhone. Tap Sounds & Haptics. Click the File menu and choose Convert, then Convert to AAC Version. The sync process is pretty straightforward. Connect your iPhone to your computer with a USB Lightning cable and then click the iPhone icon in the upper left corner of the iTunes window. Instructions in this article apply to all models of the iPhone, and iTunes 12, 11, 10, and 9. Drag the new ringtone file from the folder on your computer to the right side of the window, in the Tones folder. Right click the track and choose Song Info. In the start and stop fields, enter the time you want the ringtone to start and stop and ensure box boxes are checked. Click on the song file and then, after a moment, click it a second time so you can edit the filename. Your ringtone must not exceed 30 seconds or it won't work, so be sure you do your math correctly. Start iTunes on your computer. The process is not as simple or straightforward as most iPhone tasks, since Apple doesn't include any sort of built-in method for setting your existing songs as ringtones. Right-click the song and choose Song Info from the drop-down menu. In the Ringtone section, find and tap on the ringtone you just made. You can also set custom ringtones for specific contacts. Start the Settings app on your iPhone. On the Options tab, clear the checkmarks for start and stop. Play the song and decide what 30 second snippet of the song you want to make into a ringtone. On older versions of iTunes, you might need to right-click the song and choose Create AAC Version from the drop-down menu. It's always a good idea to make sure you're running the latest version of iTunes, especially if you don't use it often, to make sure it will sync properly with your phone. It can be any point in the song. From the iTunes music library, find a song that you want to turn into a ringtone and click on it to select the song. The original track is still set to only play for 30 seconds, so you can fix that as well. The song should sync with your iPhone immediately. For example, if you want the first 30 seconds of the song, choose 0:00 and 0:30. Select the new AAC version of the song and copy it to a location on your computer. Tap the Edit button at the top of the screen and then choose the ringtone you want to use. After a moment, you should see the new version of the song appear in the music library, directly under the currently selected original version of the track. Start the Contacts app and tap the contact you want to change. Now that you've created a ringtone and copied it to your iPhone, you can configure your phone to use it when a call comes in. The process starts on your computer, where you will use iTunes to choose a 30-second portion of a song and export that song clip in a file format that your iPhone can recognize as a ringtone. If you want to personalize your phone in a way that not a lot of other people take the time to do, you need to know how to make a song your ringtone. While the iPhone comes with a handful of distinctive and high-quality sounds that you can use as ringtones, the reality is that they're the same ones that everyone else uses, so you've heard them all before. Once you learn how to do this, though, you can do it easily for multiple songs and set up custom ringtones for all your favorite contacts. Tap Ringtone. And unlike the various free ringtones you can download, these are personalized and use the songs you already love. If you're using a Mac, click the Finder menu, and then choose Preferences. In the Finder Preferences, check Show all filename extensions. Click Tones on the left side of the screen, in the section On My Device. If iTunes offers to install the latest update, let that occur before proceeding. Click the filename extension and change it from M4A to M4R, and press Enter. If requested, confirm that you want to make this change.
