Traveling anywhere in the game now requires a loading screen (although one curown), but it feels strange to have to load the neighbors to the house that can be seen from their portico. In fact, the world you felt so realizing and adaptable in sims 3 now feels static in comparison, which can discourage some players to travel outside their habitat too frequently. It's a sin, because the game graphics are sweet, and quite impressive to have players that panoramic and zoom to get some pleasant screenshots like their age. ALL-IN-ALL, The Sims 4 is an abority-polished game that is pleasant, its without awarded help is a lack of content to stick to the impatient players.
