Today is your birthday. This year would have been a big - 70. I can not imagine it. In my mind, you are forever 46. This weekend we celebrated you. Our family would have filled a room. Maybe you and Mommy make a trip somewhere in this spring to celebrate. Your granddaughters always ask about you and they bring you when I least hope. They wonder about the $\tilde{A} \notin \hat{a} \notin$ "what if $\tilde{A} \notin \hat{a} \notin$ " too, as they ask about you. I love when they mention your name. I love when they stop to think of you. I think your grandson can be a Southpaw as you. He shares his frown when he is deep in thought and still prevents me from my bands. We had many memories yet to do. I did not know that there would not be enough time to fit everything. When I sat at his funeral, there was no concept of the moments just sneak over the years, sometimes when you least expect it. I did not understand that there would be times when I would stop and miss you so much. When we meet with our families, his name is still mentioned in the stories we shared. Although we do not see us many times, we laugh a lot when we do. When we are in courts of dance and basketball games, I think of how you would be the grandmother holding the bouquet of flowers or twisting the highest. You would not have lost a minute from any of them, just as you never lost a minute of mine. I wish we had more pictures of you. I wish we had more souvenirs as you. Happy celestial birthday, father. For two thirds of my life, missing you have been a constant. It's just a sense that is there, always there. It is the reason why I realize how precious days are and that it is better to make them tell. Today we will feel your fault even more, because the IPs are more difficult to ignore. His years stopped in 46, but our love for you never did. This post comes from the current parenting team community, where all members are welcome to post and discuss parental solutions. We sing you a song, but it happens that we are breaking the law. It's crazy, but real, singing â € "Happy birthday for you â € "" in public is illegal. Want to hear anything else that is equally disconcerting? Música was the most researched music from Google in January, according to the company's tendencies tables. Yes, birthday music. That one. Look, we think a lot and much about it, and that does not make a lick of meaning. Why, in the year 2015, Million of Americans would meet Google to look up the music that literally all in the world - including 2 year olds! "Do you know all the words for? They forgot as it goes? There was some kind of test? The Guinness Book of the World Records named $\hat{A} \notin \hat{a} \in e^{-1}$ and $\hat{A} \notin \hat{a} \in e^{-1}$ and $\hat{A} \notin \hat{a} \in \hat{a} \in \hat{c}$ and $\hat{A} \notin \hat{a} \in \hat{c}$ and $\hat{c} \notin \hat{c} \in \hat{c}$ and $\hat{c} \notin \hat{c} \notin \hat{c} \in \hat{c}$ and $\hat{c} \notin \hat{c} \notin \hat{c} \notin \hat{c} \in \hat{c}$ and $\hat{c} \notin \hat{c} \notin \hat{c}$ Swift (# 3), and Kenny Rogers à ¢ â € ^m A € cyan - which, more Time, even the babies of Friggin know how to hear. (And for more facts of day B and depressing, find out what your birth mothers say about you.) I'm not sure who wrote. You can credit the indelitable melody for the sisters Kentucky Mildred and Patty Hill, who wrote the original song \tilde{A} ¢ \hat{a} € "called \hat{a} €" Good morning to all \hat{a} € "With completely different letters Å ¢ â €" way back in 1893 as a musical health for infancy garden teachers to sing to their students But somewhere along the line, someone put the words now famous for the melody, and in the middle of the DÅ © Each of 1930, the melody of combination has become practically the original birthday music O. 2. Many people sued each other. In 1933, Irving Berlin used the "good morning to all melody in their musical, like thousands of joy. When listening, Jessica Hill - Mildred and Patty's brother - was upset that her sisters were losing credited and composition compensation. After a lawsuit left, she made a partnership with a publisher to finally, officially copyright the music in 1935. Seven years later, Hill sued this publisher for royalties about a dispute Licensing, but all invented, presumably content to just sit and watch the roll of money. Paul McCartney NÃfâ \in £ It. The publication rights of the song remained being transferred through expansions and Business Acquisitions Throughout 20 - Do not leave us with the details - but the last ones we verified: A $\hat{a} \in \neg$ A "Birthday Peliz for you It belongs only to a subsidiary of the publication arm of the Music Warner Group. There is an urban legend that former beat Paul McCa Rtney caught the rights. But that is not true; Macca has a ton of other catallogs of music, including Buddy Holly. (Hilarious suit: For many years, Michael Jackson has most of McCartney's Beatles songs. Obscenely rich people - they are just like us!) 4. Technically illegal sing. What do you think you can just walk by Aã and sing à ¢ â € M ¬ "Birthday Peliz for you ... all Willy-Nilly and run away with it? Beautiful attempt, friend. Technically, every time you fond of public music, you owe Warner a small royalties, which contributes to a report of \$ 2 million per year. That's why you almost never hear the melody in TV or movie shows, and it's the reason why restaurants create their uncomfortable songs $\hat{a} \in \hat{a} \in \hat{a}$ and border bonteysts to release unsuspecting eaters. But unless Warner had his house or office bugged - and honestly, you never know - you can sing in particular without pineapple up. (This is not the only seemingly harmless act that is really illegal. Check out 6 crimes you do not know that you are committing.) 5. But in 15 years, it will be fair game. When Jessica Hill originally protected by the copyright of music in 1935, was defined to enter the public domain in 1991 - or in two terms of 28 years, according to the law. But the copyrights act in 376 and "98 extended guard, so now, Warner will continue to print money" happy birthday song Anywhere you see, without fear of being processed? Try something like $\tilde{A} = -A$ "swing bew sweet cario $\tilde{A} \notin a \notin -$ Å" my mum and $\tilde{a} \in Both$ are in the Public Domain!
