Well, it depends on what your needs are, so we broke the winners in 3 different categories: Writing the experience of experi display From the rapid table the most pleasant writing experience, on all desktop. Runner-up platforms: even the slide has a large Markdown hybrid editor, and is probably better than Typora to the organization, it's Ulysses. We don't even have a runner for this category because nothing is approaching. Your points of view, custom searches, filters and tags are all designed to help you keep all your notes and write organized. However, A & Roam ResearchA & also deserves a mention in this category thanks to its unique and associative structure. For some people, it will be much higher than a traditional and hierarchical system. Best the general note for the general note for the general note, see the Green Elephant logo does not spark more joy in me, Evernote is still the best choice for most people. His vast feature set ensures that everything is quite suitable and has fewer streni (even if it does not have the support of the Markdown à ¢ â,¬ "a great extraordinary)." SA Great Tool to store your search files and school (and Memes!). Also, it's free if you use only two devices. Perfull disclosure: I used it for most of my post-secondary student life, but only because I didn't have time to explore a better alternative. A couple of multi-platform frame are standard known and notion. The notion, in particular, has come dangerously close to take the first place due to the most powerful database, functionalities of free models and accounts, but the current lack of offline support keeps it from taking our first place (even if Our founder Thomas uses it on any other app for your work). Once again, SLite would also be in this list if it was faster. For Mac + iOS users, go for the bear if you don't use many tables and Apple notes if you do it. While Ulysses is the top-of-the-line option and my personal choice (roxine), it is For serious writers and probably not worth the 4x cost on the bear for what is needed as many note sockets. , the trues app à ¢ â,¬ Å "Bestà ¢ â,¬" app is the one that best fits your work style. Furthermore, it needs to work well with the entire productivity system - including yours Task Manager, the Calendar and the file management system. If you wish you wish How to set all these tools to work in harmony (and keep them organized in the long term), check the Thomas class "on the construction of a productivity system: if you are verifying an app that is not in this list, here are some of the criteria that You should consider when you decide which app to use as your second brain. HYBRID MARKDOWN supports a student, you need to take notes quickly. When I was still at school, I learned the Markdown à ¢ â,¬ "a syntax that me It has allowed you to format my notes as I typed For this reason, I advise you to give the priority to the app with the Markdown hybrid support. This feature lets you see what the text seems to be formatted as you are typing. In this way you can break down the bullet points, thoughts, lessons and speak quickly without your fingers leaving the keyboard. If you don't know how to use the Markdown again, have an app that allows you to use it if you want to encourage you to learn it. And when you do, you don't think back. Organization with nested hierarchies you need a way to separate, organize, refer to the files of each class as you write. For this reason, we have not included apps that did not have a file navigation panel. This is why Google Docs, Dropbox Paper and Microsoft Word do not perform the list A ¢ â, "they a" ¢ â "¢ is pure processing of texts, not pointing on apps.more specifically, you want an app That allows you to create nested hierarchies within that file browser A ¢ â, "Folders inside the folders inside the folders.
